Why Do Stars' Marriages Fail?

DIVORCE COURTS DO THRIVING TRADE

Hollywood Industry That Knows No Slump

Divorce mills of the gods of Hollywood didn't grind slowly in 1935. In fact, they ground so fast that filmdom is still trying to pull itself together and fill another couple who can be dubbed "The Happiest Married Pair."

Husbands and wives, like money, are easy come and easy go with Hollywood. Look at the "imposing" list of 1935's broken romances:

JEAN HARLOW divorced her third husband on March 11. He was cruel to her.

MARY PICKFORD uprooted Hollywood's greatest matrimonial anchor when she divorced DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS. When the divorce became absolute in March this year, Douglas is expected to marry LADY CYNTHIA ASHLEY, in whose divorce he was cited as co-respondent, while Mary's name has been linked with Charles ("Buddy") Rogers.

JOHNNY "Tarzan" WEISMULLER and his mate (LUPEZ VELAZQUEZ) fell out, became reconciled, divorced, all in the course of a few months. Lupe alleged that her Tarzan threw the furniture at her.

MARY ASTOR sued her second husband, Dr. Franklin Thorpe on incompatibility grounds, and secured one of Reno's 2,800 divorces.

DOLORES COSTELLO alleged cruelty and habitual intemperance against hubby JOHN BARRYMORE, receiving custody of their two children. Barrymore's name was linked with that of Elaine Jacobs, with whom he went on a yachting cruise. Now John doesn't speak to Elaine any more.

Beautiful ELISSA LANDI was the next to fall by the divorce wayside, securing a divorce from London barrister-hubby John Cecil Lawrence, who refuses to recognize the Los Angeles decree as binding on a British subject.

"Extreme cruelty" secured Colleen Moore a Los Angeles divorce from Albert Scott, a New York Broker.

VIRGINIA BRUCE won't get another "perfect romance" when she divorced hubby JOHN GILBERT.

Frozen faced BUSTER KEATON didn't smile even when he gained his freedom from Mrs. Buster. Why? Cause Buster was the defendant, and there was also a $200,000 allegation of affection's charge against his friend Mrs. L. C. Sewell.

LILA LEE, a film star known to fans of a decade ago more than to the younger generation, went to Carson City for her divorce from Jack R. Peino, another New York broker. You'll notice that New York brokers have been pretty prominent so far. Lila's case was heard behind closed doors.

JOAN BLONDELL successfully alleged that thrice-previously married husband GEORGE BARNES had not spoken to her for hours at a time, drove a motor car while intoxicated and ignored her guests at their home when she asked the divorce court in Los Angeles to end yet another of Hollywood's "perfect romances."

MARIA JERITZA, the operatic film star, married filmproducer Wilfred Sheehan after she had secured divorce from Baron von Popper. There was a spot of bother when Maria and her husband visited Austria in September, Austrian Government ordering her to leave country before they prosecuted for alleged bigamy, Arkansas divorces being unrecognizable in Austria.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT and NORMAN FOSTER completed the drama of real life tangles when they divorced in November, Claudette taking the initiative. FOSTER immediately announced intention of marrying Sally Blane, sister of Loretta Young.

They do say that Hollywood parents teach their children arithmetic by getting them to add up the number of daddies they've had.

Emperor Starts Fashion

EMPEROR HAILE SELASSIE WILL SOON SHOW HIS INFLUENCE ON WOMEN'S FASHIONS.

Hats and frocks are going all Ethiopian.

Bonnets decorated with an array of slender feathers, as worn by the Emperor's troops, will be all the rage.

Cloaks after the Abyssinian design will be popular for evening wear, and for the afternoon at home, trousers tailored in the best Addis Ababa manner.

The new dresses for the home will also be worn with sandals of Abyssinian design.

BARBARA HUTTON'S HAPPY EVENT

IN A DIM ROOM OVERFLOWING WITH PALE ORCHIDS A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN AWAITS THE PROUD MOMENT OF HER LIFE.

Countess Haugwitz von Reventlow, formerly Barbara Hutton, the American heiress, is expecting a happy event.

"I am perfectly happy and very proud," she said. "I am able to write poetry and live a life of happy poems."

The happy event is expected towards the end of this month, and the countess has cancelled all of her social engagements.

Poetry Hobby

Now she spends most of her time indoors reading the poems of Byron and her favourite Eastern writer, Tagore.

In the quiet room in which she rests is a concealed gramophone controlled by a tiny switch at her bedside. It continually plays Oriental music.

If Japan Went To War

"The principal contribution the United States and Great Britain can make to the solution of the Far Eastern question lies largely along economic lines."

Sir Frederick Whyte, former Political Adviser to the National Government of China, put forward this contention when he spoke on "the situation in the Far East" at the Royal United Service Institution in London last month.

He declared that the root cause of the present trouble in the Far East was the character of China during the Revolution. The Chinese had failed to put their house in order, and the Japanese had taken advantage of the situation.

Japan's hope of Manchuria as an outlet for her population and products did not appear likely to be satisfied.

Was war inevitable? It might be inevitable between Russia and Japan. It was conceivable though he did not believe it was probable—that there might be war between the United States and Japan, in which event Britain would almost inevitably be involved.

Communications

Britain's major concern, however, would be the preservation of uninterrupted communication with her great Imperial estate, and the Far East was just off the main line.

If Japan gained control of the Philippine Islands, it would bring interference by them with our own lines of communication much nearer.

Britain's contribution to the Far Eastern problem might be made when the Japanese reached a more amenable frame of mind. When the fruits of their Far Eastern campaign came home, they might be persuaded to give their politicians and diplomats another chance. It might then be seen that the real solution of the problem did not lie in Asia at all, but in the markets of the world.

Then, and then only, could the influence of the United States and Britain be brought to bear.

"Through that very narrow opening," Sir Frederick commented, "I see something of the daylight of peace for the Far East in the future. The majority of our fellow-countrymen are pro-Chinese, but in the services the majority are, perhaps, the other way. I think we have reached a point when we ought to be ourselves, because we have reached a critical stage in our relations to the Far East."

BRITISH RULES FOR SAFETY AT SEA

Shorter Hours; Stricter Surveys Of Ships

GLAMOUR OF FIRST NIGHTS

EVEN TRAGEDY CANNOT STOP PERFORMANCE

ALL first nights are glamorous; when sensation is added they become memorable.

I recall the premiere of Ildore de Lara's opera "Nall," by the Beecham Opera Company, at Manchester Opera House on a February evening in 1920.

Sir Thomas had promised to conduct the new work, Miss Rosina Buckman was cast for the title role, and the big theatre was crowded from floor to roof.

Sensation No. 1 was a wire from Sir Thomas saying he could not appear. Then came a greater shock.

When Miss Buckman arrived, smiling and radiant, I saw the stage doorkeeper hand her a cable. It was a message of tragedy. Her mother had died suddenly.

A desperate position developed. Out in front some three thousand people sat waiting. Behind the scenes the prima donna, upon whom everything depended, lay prostrate with grief.

Realising the seriousness of it all, Miss Buckman nerved herself for a supreme effort.

On her first stage entrance the sympathetic murmurs of the audience were hushed to a tense silence? Would she get through?

Faint tremors in her opening number told of the strain—the terrible heart-ache behind the stage smile.

Gradually the tremors ceased and the glorious notes flowed stronger and clearer. It was a grim battle between the artist and cruel circumstance. The artist won.

Right to the end she carried her exacting role. Then the vast audience rose en masse and shouted thunderous approval of Rosina Buckman—heroine!—H.C.L.

SIXTY BARRED PEOPLE

WHO CANNOT VISIT HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT

Nearly sixty people are barred from the House of Commons and the House of Lords.

This was revealed at Bow-street Police Court recently, when Henry Cole, a guide, was summoned for obstruction.

Cole, who said that he wanted to defend his rights as a private individual to enter Westminster Abbey or the House of Commons to see his M.P., summoned four policemen for assault.

An official of the Abbey said that, under a statute of Queen Elizabeth, the Abbey came directly under the King, who had full jurisdiction.

The magistrate upheld the right of the authorities to exclude Cole or any one they liked, but dismissed the obstruction case. Cole gave notice of appeal.

The summonses against two policemen were dismissed with costs, and the case against the other two policemen was adjourned.

AN "EFFICIENT DECKHAND"

MUST BE THREE YEARS AT SEA INSTEAD OF ONE

MR. RUNCIMAN, President of the Board of Trade, will shortly announce in Parliament important new regulations governing safety at sea and the working conditions of seamen.

The Sunday Express is able to reveal that the new regulations will provide:

Shorter hours for seamen.
Changes in the manning regulations.
The definition of what is an "efficient deckhand."

More stringent rules regarding the use of the "rod-and-chain" type of steering gear in ships over a certain tonnage.
Stricter surveys of ships by the classification societies (such as Lloyd's).

Inquiries conducted by Lord Merrivale into losses at sea led the Board of Trade to set up committees which are now investigating the problems.

Their reports will be received by Mr. Runciman in a few days' time. The Merchant Shipping Advisory Committee met last Friday to discuss its draft report.

It is understood that it was then announced that a decision had been reached regarding the term "efficient deckhand."

This definition has been the subject of many controversies. At present it is possible for any one who has been to sea for twelve months to be called "an efficient deckhand."

The committee is to advise that the term should be applied only to seamen who have been three years on the deck.

This dramatic photograph of survivors of the British steamer, Silverhazel, wrecked off Luzon was taken from U.S.S. Peary just before the weary seamen were taken aboard.

DESSYE SEEN AS ETHIOPIAN ARMAGEDDON

Mountain Town Marked For Last Stand If Italians Advance

Dessye, Jan. 25.

The placid town of Dessye has overnight become one of the most important cities of Ethiopia and suddenly found itself acting capital when the Emperor arrived.

Natives think the ultimate defence of Ethiopia will be fought near here. No one remotely dreams the Italians could advance this far but if they do, the last-ditch fight will be just north of here.

Dessye is built upon a high mountain surrounded by mountains. In the early warring days a village's safety depended upon its height and the ability of its guardians to see the enemy while afar. No one could approach Dessye unseen, and the few trails leading to it could be blocked so easily as to make conquest well-nigh impossible.

Location Is Strategic

The town seemingly could not be conquered by planes, for even though bombed the wooded mountain offers abundant shelter. It is difficult to see how heavy guns could be brought over the mountains to bear upon it. If taken, infantry must do it, strategists say.

It might be a Quebec again, but it is more probable that its wary guardians wouldn't be caught asleep.

The soldiers somehow have procured tents, and those who have none make them from any cloth, hay, straw, reeds, matting or whatever is available. They are pitched irregularly but the infinite variety of their design and colour gives a picturesque touch to the whole.

The meadows all around Dessye are covered with tents. Men spend their time talking, riding sleek mules, dashing madly on wild horses—lances raised for combat. Women do the work and children spend their time gazing at the wonders of the city and looking at foreigners.

Guards On Alert

At night the plains are alight with the "watchfires of a hundred encircling camps." From Dessye mountain fires can be seen for miles in any direction. Guards are always on duty.

These will pass on, but daily others arrive in one long caravan to take their places. From mountain, plain and desert, all trails lead to Dessye, and here they come, all hoping to see the Emperor before going into battle.

Stories of war's suffering already are seeping through to Dessye. Men, women and children go to war. No age is exempt. There is no commissariat, often there is a struggle for food, and the weak lose out. Old folks and children have been left to starve along the roadside.

Others have been taken sick and are left to die. There are relatives at home who do care and would help but they are far away.

An epidemic of smallpox has broken out in the army. There is a Red Cross, but it isn't functioning in the north. Wounded are left to recover or die as it may be. Some have made the ten-day trip to Dessye in 20 days and entered crazed by pain and almost dead from suffering, their wounds infected.

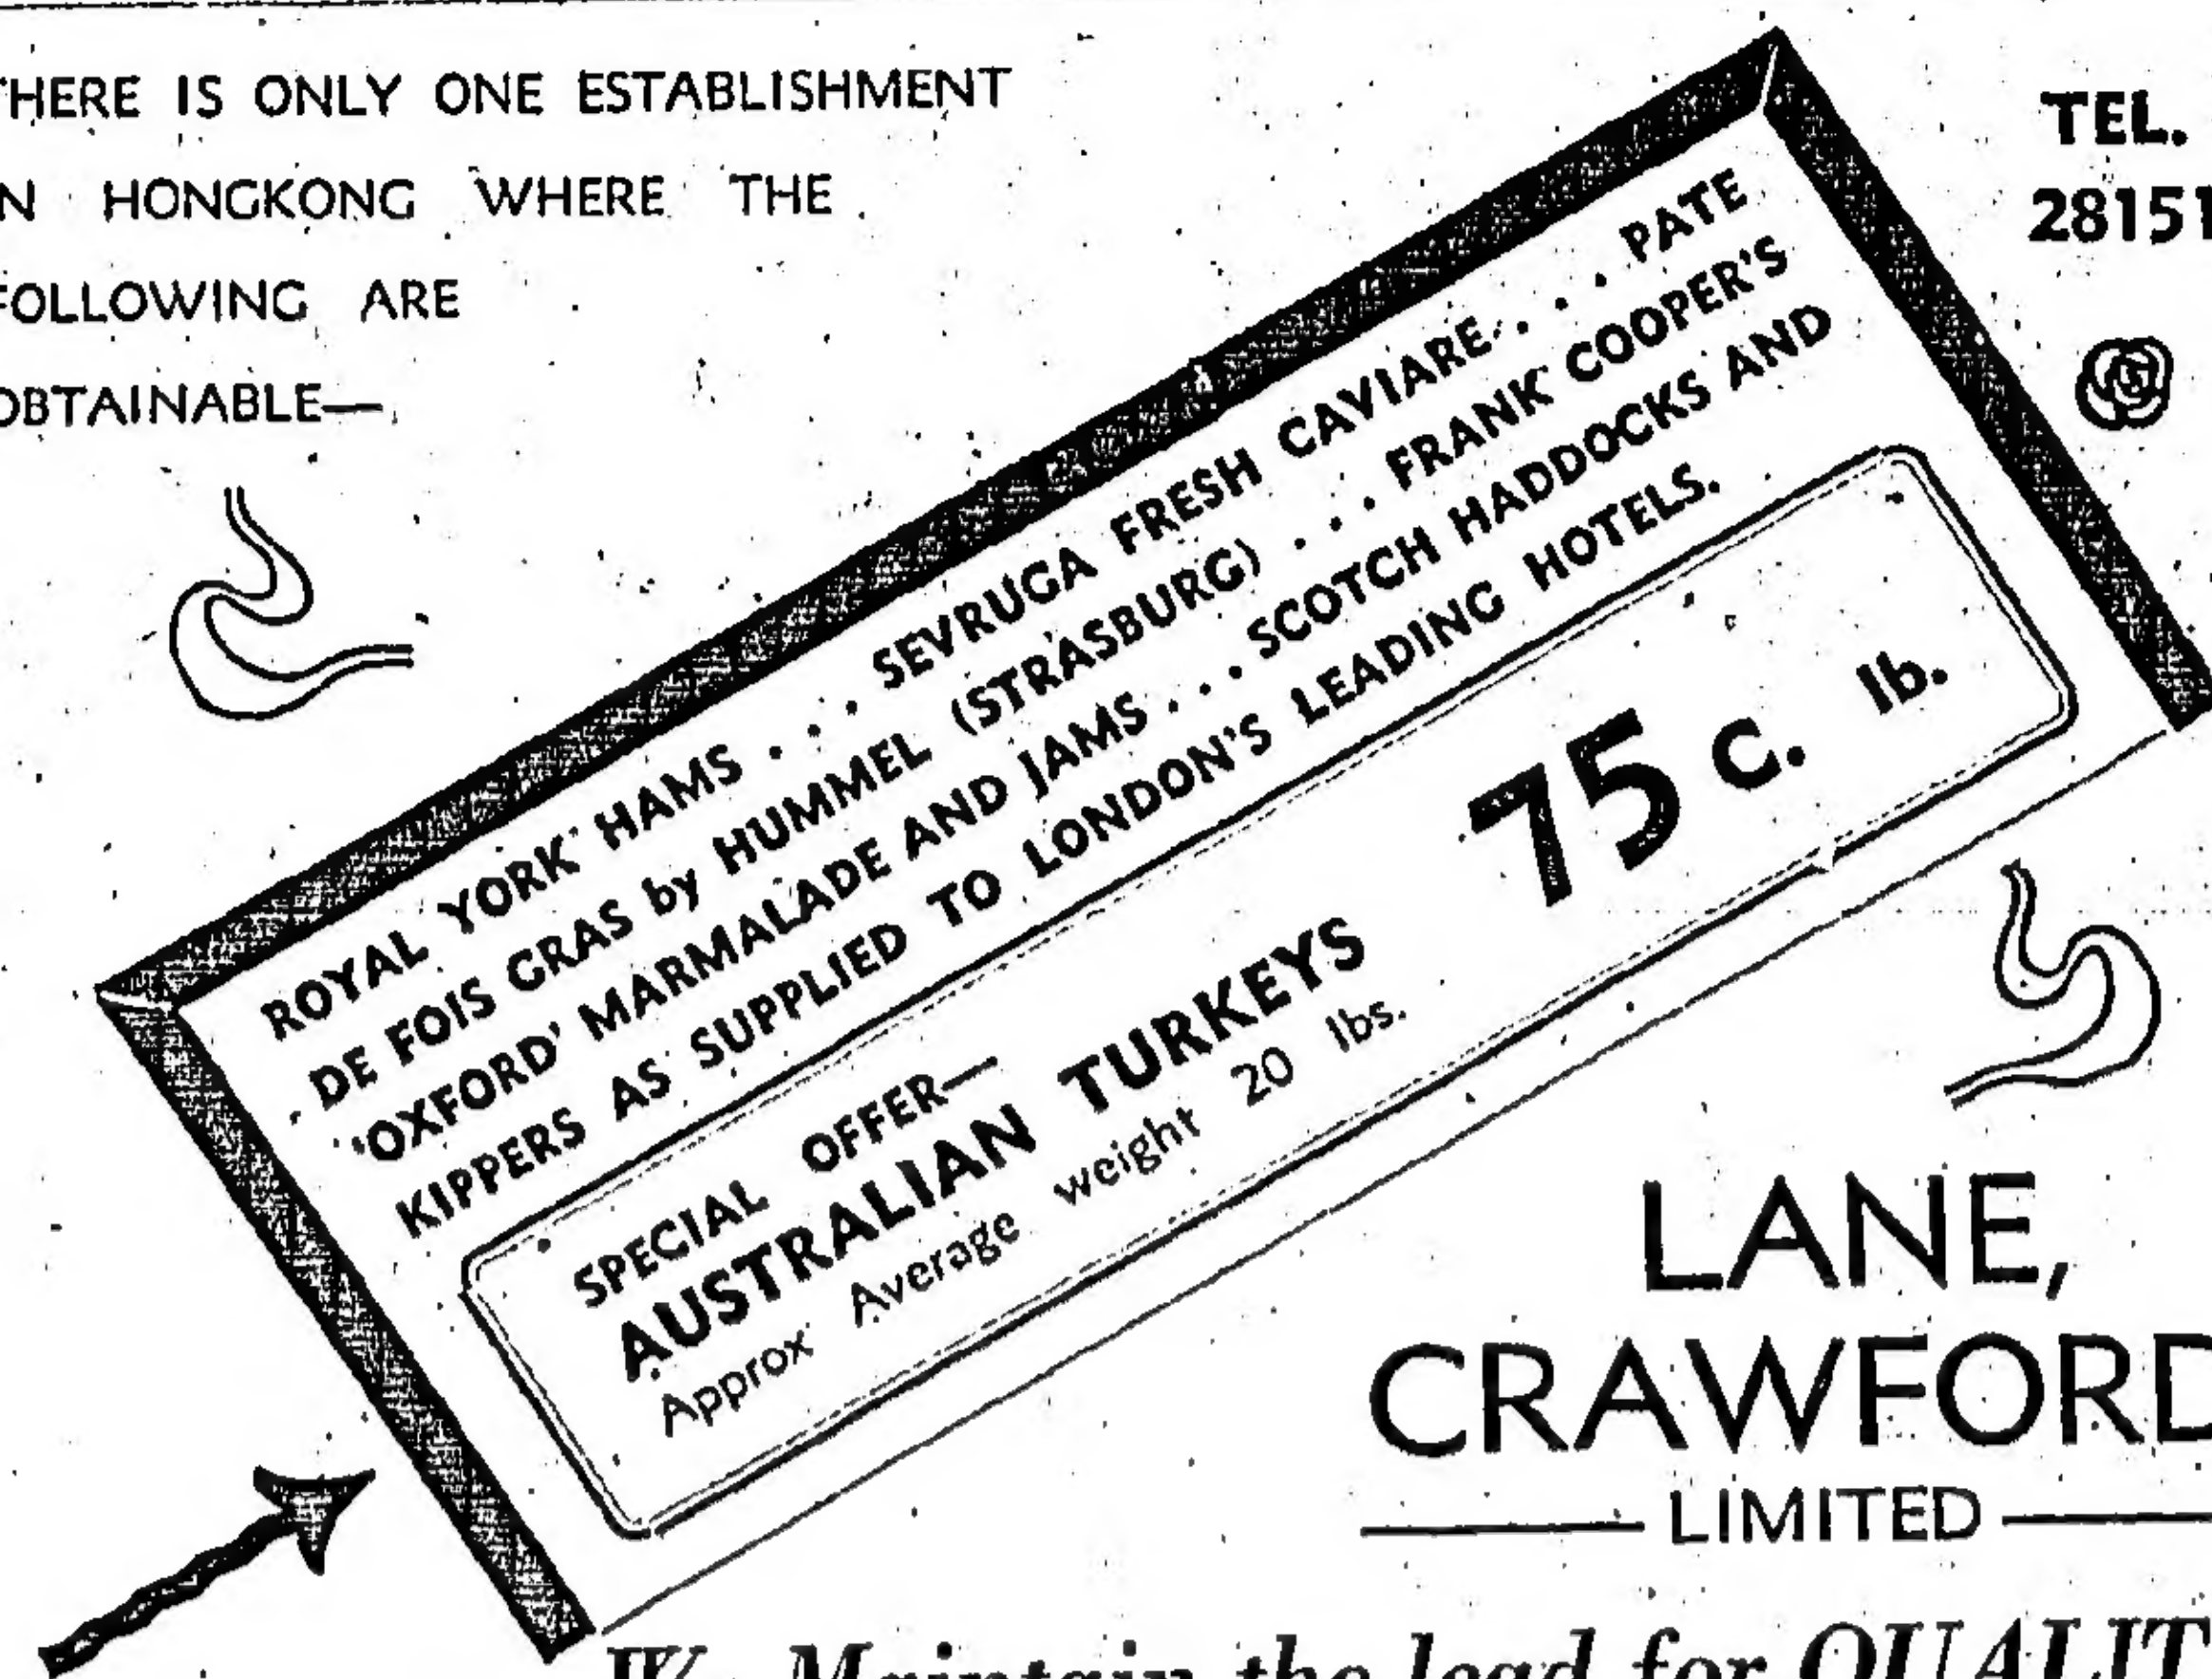

But most terrifying of all is the story of the 45 Mammassans who deserted Italy's colours to join the Ethiopians. They crossed to the Ethiopian lines with guns and ammunition and expected to find friends. Instead they met Dejaz Haile Selassie Gugsa and his rebellious Wajerat who then were on the point of deserting to the Italians. They attacked the 45 with 500 men, took their weapons to be returned to the Italians, killed seven, and broke bones, crippled and mutilated the rest, according to stories here.

The survivors managed to reach the Dessye hospital, and duly received treatment, but were told that they would be crippled for life.—United Press.

Ras Gugsa Still Works For Italy

Asmara, Jan. 28. Reports that Ras Gugsa, the Emperor of Abyssinia's son-in-law, who submitted to the Italians in October, had either been executed or imprisoned because of treachery to the Italians, are emphatically denied by Italian military headquarters.

Ras Gugsa, it is announced, is at present playing the minor role of keeping the natives in the occupied territory moving.

He is always accompanied by his bodyguard and extra precautions have been taken to protect him because of the price the Abyssinians have put on his head.

BROKEN ROMANCE?

But Post Office Made No Mistake

At 4 o'clock in the afternoon a week or two ago, a young man hurried into a suburban post office at Melbourne and handed in a wire.

At 4.11 p.m. a telegraph clerk at the general post office scratched his head over it. It was addressed to, "A Lady in Black Waiting Outside So-and-So's (A well-known jeweller's shop), Bourke Street, Melbourne."

The clerk consulted his departmental manager. A telegraph boy was despatched post-haste across the street, which happens to be Bourke Street, and searched systematically among the crowd.

He found the right Lady in Black and, exactly at 4.13 p.m., handed her the wire. She read it hurriedly. Then with a final glance at the rings in the jeweller's window she walked dejectedly away.

But the Post Office, says Austral News, had unquestionably done its ingenious smart job.

PRIEST AT A PARIS DUEL

One Man Wounded: Unknown Antagonist

Paris, Jan. 28.

M. JACQUES DOURDAIN, aged 26, who is well known in Parisian Society, was severely wounded in a duel in the Parc des Princes this morning, while a priest stood by in case there were need of absolution.

The Parc des Princes, traditional duelling ground of Paris, contains a football ground, and it was here that the duel took place, the two men standing on the markings of the pitch. The name of M. Dourdain's adversary is being kept secret.

Outside the park a mysterious woman, cloaked in furs, walked up and down. When anyone approached her she covered her face.

Eight men in two parties of four, dressed in black, were seen to enter the park from opposite entrances.

One witness was overheard being addressed as "Colonel."

Two Exchanges

The duel was conducted by the famous duel master, Jean Joseph Renaud.

The arrangement was that there should be two exchanges of shots; but only one of these was fired, for in the first exchange a bullet hit M. Dourdain in the hip.

It was quite impossible to do anything on the spot to extract the bullet, which was deeply imbedded, and the wounded duellist was rushed off to a nursing home.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET UPWARD YESTERDAY

New York, Feb. 13.

Swan, Culbertson & Fritz Wall Street Journal comment: "Western railroad companies are showing higher traffic gains this year than railways in other sections of the United States. All business indices are gaining sharply, except the index for employment which threatens a permanent recovery in general business. European countries are impressed with Herbert Hoover's remarks regarding inflation. Many bankers report that at least 50 per cent. of their buying orders are still for cash, although speculative demand has increased considerably. Short interest is still considerably small."

S. C. & F. New York office cables: Stocks: Securities continue in good demand in spite of some profit-taking. Pittsburgh steel scrap prices, have advanced by 25 cents a ton. The Douglas Aircraft Company has earned $2.70 per share for the year ended November 30th, against 8 cents per share the previous year. The Company's unfilled orders amount to $13,800,000 on February 8th, against $5,388,000 on November 30, 1935. The Southern Railway Company lost $1,623,000 in 1935, against a loss of $2,795,000 the previous year.

Cotton: The firm technical position for nearby cotton is indicated by an unconfirmed report that the Producers' Pool has sold 50,000 bales of "spot" cotton. The Journal of Commerce estimates that it is the intention of farmers to plant 32,375,000 acres.

Wheat: The firmness of the market reflects the improvement in foreign and Canadian export demand which, on Wednesday, was estimated at 2,500,000 bushels. The cash market is dull, but firm. The corn market is featureless.

Rubber: The firmness is due to lack of offerings from the East and also owing to the strength of the London market.

Special: Average daily petroleum production during the past week is estimated at 2,700,000 barrels, against 2,815,000 barrels the previous week. The Edison Electric Institute estimates electricity production at 1,952,000,000 k.w.h., an increase of 10.7 per cent. over the corresponding period of last year.

SCHOOL MATCH

Staff Beats Pupils By Wide Margin

Pupils of the Central British School turned out in large numbers at King's Park yesterday afternoon to witness a hockey match played between the Staff and the girls' senior eleven. It was the first game of its kind in the school's history and was a thoroughly enjoyed and well-attended event.

The Staff scored three goals in each half of the game. The goal scorers were Morris (3), McLellan (2) and Miss W. Marsh. The Staff were best served by McLellan who played an untiring game in the pivotal position. He was responsible for spoiling many promising movements in the girls' attack. Miss Marsh, on the right wing, and Miss Knill, on the left, were speedy.

The losers, though severely tounded, nevertheless put up a very creditable performance. E. Martin, M. McCaw and D. McCaw did splendid work in the defence, the hitting of the last named being especially hard and accurate.

Throughout the match sections of the spectators shouted lustily in turn for the Staff and for the School.

AUSTRALIAN DANCE

ANNIVERSARY DAYS OF TWO COUNTRIES HONOURED

All preparations have been made for the dance to be held to-night by the Australian and New Zealand Association at their club rooms in the Gloucester Hotel building.

The dance, which will commence at 9.15 p.m., is to commemorate the anniversary days of both New Zealand and Australia. The two anniversary days fall in January but the preparations for a dance at that time were cancelled following the death of King George.

And there is a world-wide organisation to make Bedford service and genuine spares available everywhere.

Tested at every stage in the famous Luton works in England, proved sound and reliable on the roughest work in the world, the Bedford is a first-class investment whatever the nature of work!

BRITISH DEFENCE

It has long since been clear that, having failed in her efforts to induce other nations to follow her example in disarmament, Britain will be forced to spend huge sums on Home and Imperial defence. One report puts the figure as high as £300,000,000. Whether anything like that sum is contemplated will be revealed when the Prime Minister makes his promised statement on the subject. A factor which weighs with the Government is obviously a desire to be able to speak more effectively in the councils of the Powers when crises arise, and to be in a position to act swiftly in co-operation with nations pledged to the collective security system. These are amongst the major objectives of the Government, coupled with a determination to defend all parts of the Empire from aggression should the necessity arise. Issues having a relation to these points are being discussed at the London Naval Conference. Differences of view have been apparent regarding the size of battleships, and it is not too much to say that some of the most anxious problems of defence with which Britain is faced would appear to have been solved by the investigations into the question of the vulnerability of large warships against aerial attack. There was recently a fear that no answer to the question was likely to be forthcoming at present, for the various categories of experts in national defence were at sixes and sevens, some contending that the modern battleship with adequate deck protection has nothing to fear from enemy bombs, and others that aeroplanes can attack warships with such accuracy and deadliness that the latter would be little better than floating coffins. In such a controversy the lessons of the Great War are not of much use towards solving the problem. Vast progress has been made in aerial power of attack during the past decade or two; warship designers also have not been standing still. Many British warships have been modernised, and anti-aircraft gunfire has become much more effective. According to Viscount Monsell, experiments have enabled adequate protection to be made for battleships against the air menace both as regard anti-aircraft guns and hull construction. Information is thereby available for the construction of the modern battleship. Admittedly, the theories of experts are sometimes blown sky-high in a few moments of practical experience. But this much is clear: that despite the rapidly increasing air strength of many European and other nations, the day has not yet come when Great Britain can dispense with a powerful naval fleet. That remains one of the essential, pre-dominant conditions of Imperial security.

WHEN South Australia celebrates its hundredth birthday this year it will look back proudly on the heroic deeds of its early explorers.

For they faced starvation and death, fierce heat in arid deserts, the spears and waddies of hostile blacks, and the perils of trackless bush in order to blaze the trail for the later pioneers who harnessed nature and brought the State into flourishing prosperity.

Many of the hardships they endured were peculiar to the vast new land they were opening up, and in overcoming them they showed courage, bravery, and resource equal to any in the world. Yet hitherto the world has heard little of South Australia's explorers.

NOTES OF THE DAY

VALUABLE SERVICE

Yesterday morning a big Chinese aeroplane carried the first Paris-bound mails out of Shanghai. It was headed for Hanoi, there to meet an Air France machine and transfer its precious cargo. The Air France plane will not waste time on its long voyage to Europe, but will deliver Shanghai's mail in Paris eleven days after posting. Later on this weekly service will carry passengers. One will be able to step aboard a plane in Canton, go in fast hops to Hanoi, transfer to a French machine, and ten days after leaving have dinner in Paris. Such a service will mean much to business, will facilitate trade and knit more closely the sympathetic relations between Occident and Orient. We fully appreciate the stride the French and Chinese authorities have taken, and we only regret that it was not a British company, with Hongkong as its eastern base of operations, which fetched this joint contract for mail to Europe. It would be a boon to this port to participate in such a service. As it is, we can make a fairly quick connection by arranging for posting in Canton mail which is to be carried by this international service. But it gives one a feeling of inferiority in foresight and business acumen that with the world around us developing these modern avenues of commerce, we still remain satisfied with the old, slow-but-sure systems, or scramble to take advantage of someone else's enterprise.

His over-zeal, Baxter, implored his share of the pulling. At last Eyre to let him come, too. They reached their base depot on Eyre agreed, and so the two white men, with three aborigines, set out on one of the most arduous enterprises in history. MEN WHO MADE

South Australia

By Clifford Twelftree

THREE of the greatest and most daring of them were buried Baxter in a shallow grave, Edward John Eyre, Captain and struggled forward. They Charles Sturt, and John had practically no water and not an ounce of flour. And they were 600 miles from civilisation.

Eyre was one of the hardy "overlanders" who drove great mobs of cattle from New South Wales to South Australia less maddened by thirst. Then they had been proclaimed a State under the Old Gum Tree near Adelaide in December, 1836. But it is for his amazing exploit in crossing the continent from east to west that his name will live for always in Australian history.

Eyre left the settlement of Adelaide on his overland journey felt fit to go on. Eventually, of 2,000 miles to Western Australia in June, 1840. He intended to strike north from the head of the Great Australian Bight, and, if possible, find country that would provide a safe route to the west.

But there was no fertile country to be found—nothing but stony desert, and sand, and salt tracks. So Eyre with his five other white men and two blacks returned to the safety of Port Lincoln. There he decided to go to the west along the forbidding coastline.

In the scorching heat of an unusually hot summer, the party toiled on. Eyre realised what a desperate task lay ahead of him, and he decided to send his party back and reach Western Australia alone—or perish.

His over-zeal, Baxter, implored his share of the pulling. At last Eyre to let him come, too. They reached their base depot on Eyre agreed, and so the two white men, with three aborigines, set out on one of the most arduous enterprises in history. They pushed on with that endurance which comes only to those who know the odds are overwhelmingly against them.

One waterless stretch of sandy waste they crossed was 165 miles long; and for five days their horses had nothing to drink. The men were crazed by the thirst during the long hot days, and were racked by cold at night. Still they pushed on. Then came tragedy, swift and terrible. Eyre was away from the camp. Two of the blacks turned traitor. They murdered Baxter, plundered the camp, and made off into the night.

The other black boy, Wylie, remained faithful to his master, close to Broken Hill, without realising the untold wealth of silver that lay there, and came soon to a fine water supply at Rocky Glen.

Here they were marooned, for the country was in the grip of a terrible drought, and they dared not leave their water haven until rain fell. After six weary months at Rocky Glen, the drought broke and Sturt pushed on towards the heart of the continent. He was attacked by a scurvy, but gallantly rode on and discovered many creeks and rivers. Then summer drove him back. When the relief expedition reached him he was ill and depressed, but he had opened the way to immense areas of pastoral country.

THE name of Sturt's companion, John McDouall Stuart, will always be remembered in Australia, for he was the first man to cross the continent from south to north. Twice he set out from Adelaide, and twice he was forced back—by sickness, lack of food, desert country, and hostile natives. Stuart began his third attempt in 1861. He was so confident that he told the Governor of South Australia that he would bathe in the Indian Ocean before he returned.

The party encountered scores of obstacles, but in July, 1862, the leaders felt that their journey was ending. On July 25 they burst through the mangroves and shouted "The sea! The sea!" And Stuart bathed in it. The journey was over.

Stuart's boundless determination and grit had been well rewarded. His great expedition captured the imagination of the Commonwealth, and he was given an enthusiastic reception when he returned to Adelaide. He, too, paved the way for large-scale pastoral settlement in the north.

THESE men—Eyre, Sturt, and Stuart—were leaders among the scores of explorers who helped to bring South Australia into being.

Those who have come after them have shown the same energy, pluck, and enterprise in building up their State. The achievements of these men, for a population of only 600,000, are remarkable and are probably unsurpassed. They will be remembered during the centenary celebrations this year. Here are some of them:—

South Australia was the first country in the world to introduce the system of voting by ballot, which has supplanted the practices typified in Dickens' "Eats-will poll."

South Australia was the first State in Australia to give votes to women. The Act was passed in 1894, and women voted for the first time on April 25, 1896.

South Australia had the first State-owned railway in the British Empire. It began running between Adelaide and Port Adelaide in 1856.

Adelaide is the oldest municipality in Australasia. The city was incorporated in 1840, four years after the foundations of the State.

The Torrens system of land transfer, which has been taken as the pattern of similar legislation in most other parts of the world, originated in South Australia in 1858.

By the completion in 1872 of a telegraph line across the continent from Adelaide to Darwin, Adelaide was the first city in Australia to be connected with London.

The University of Adelaide was the first in Australia to institute a commercial course.

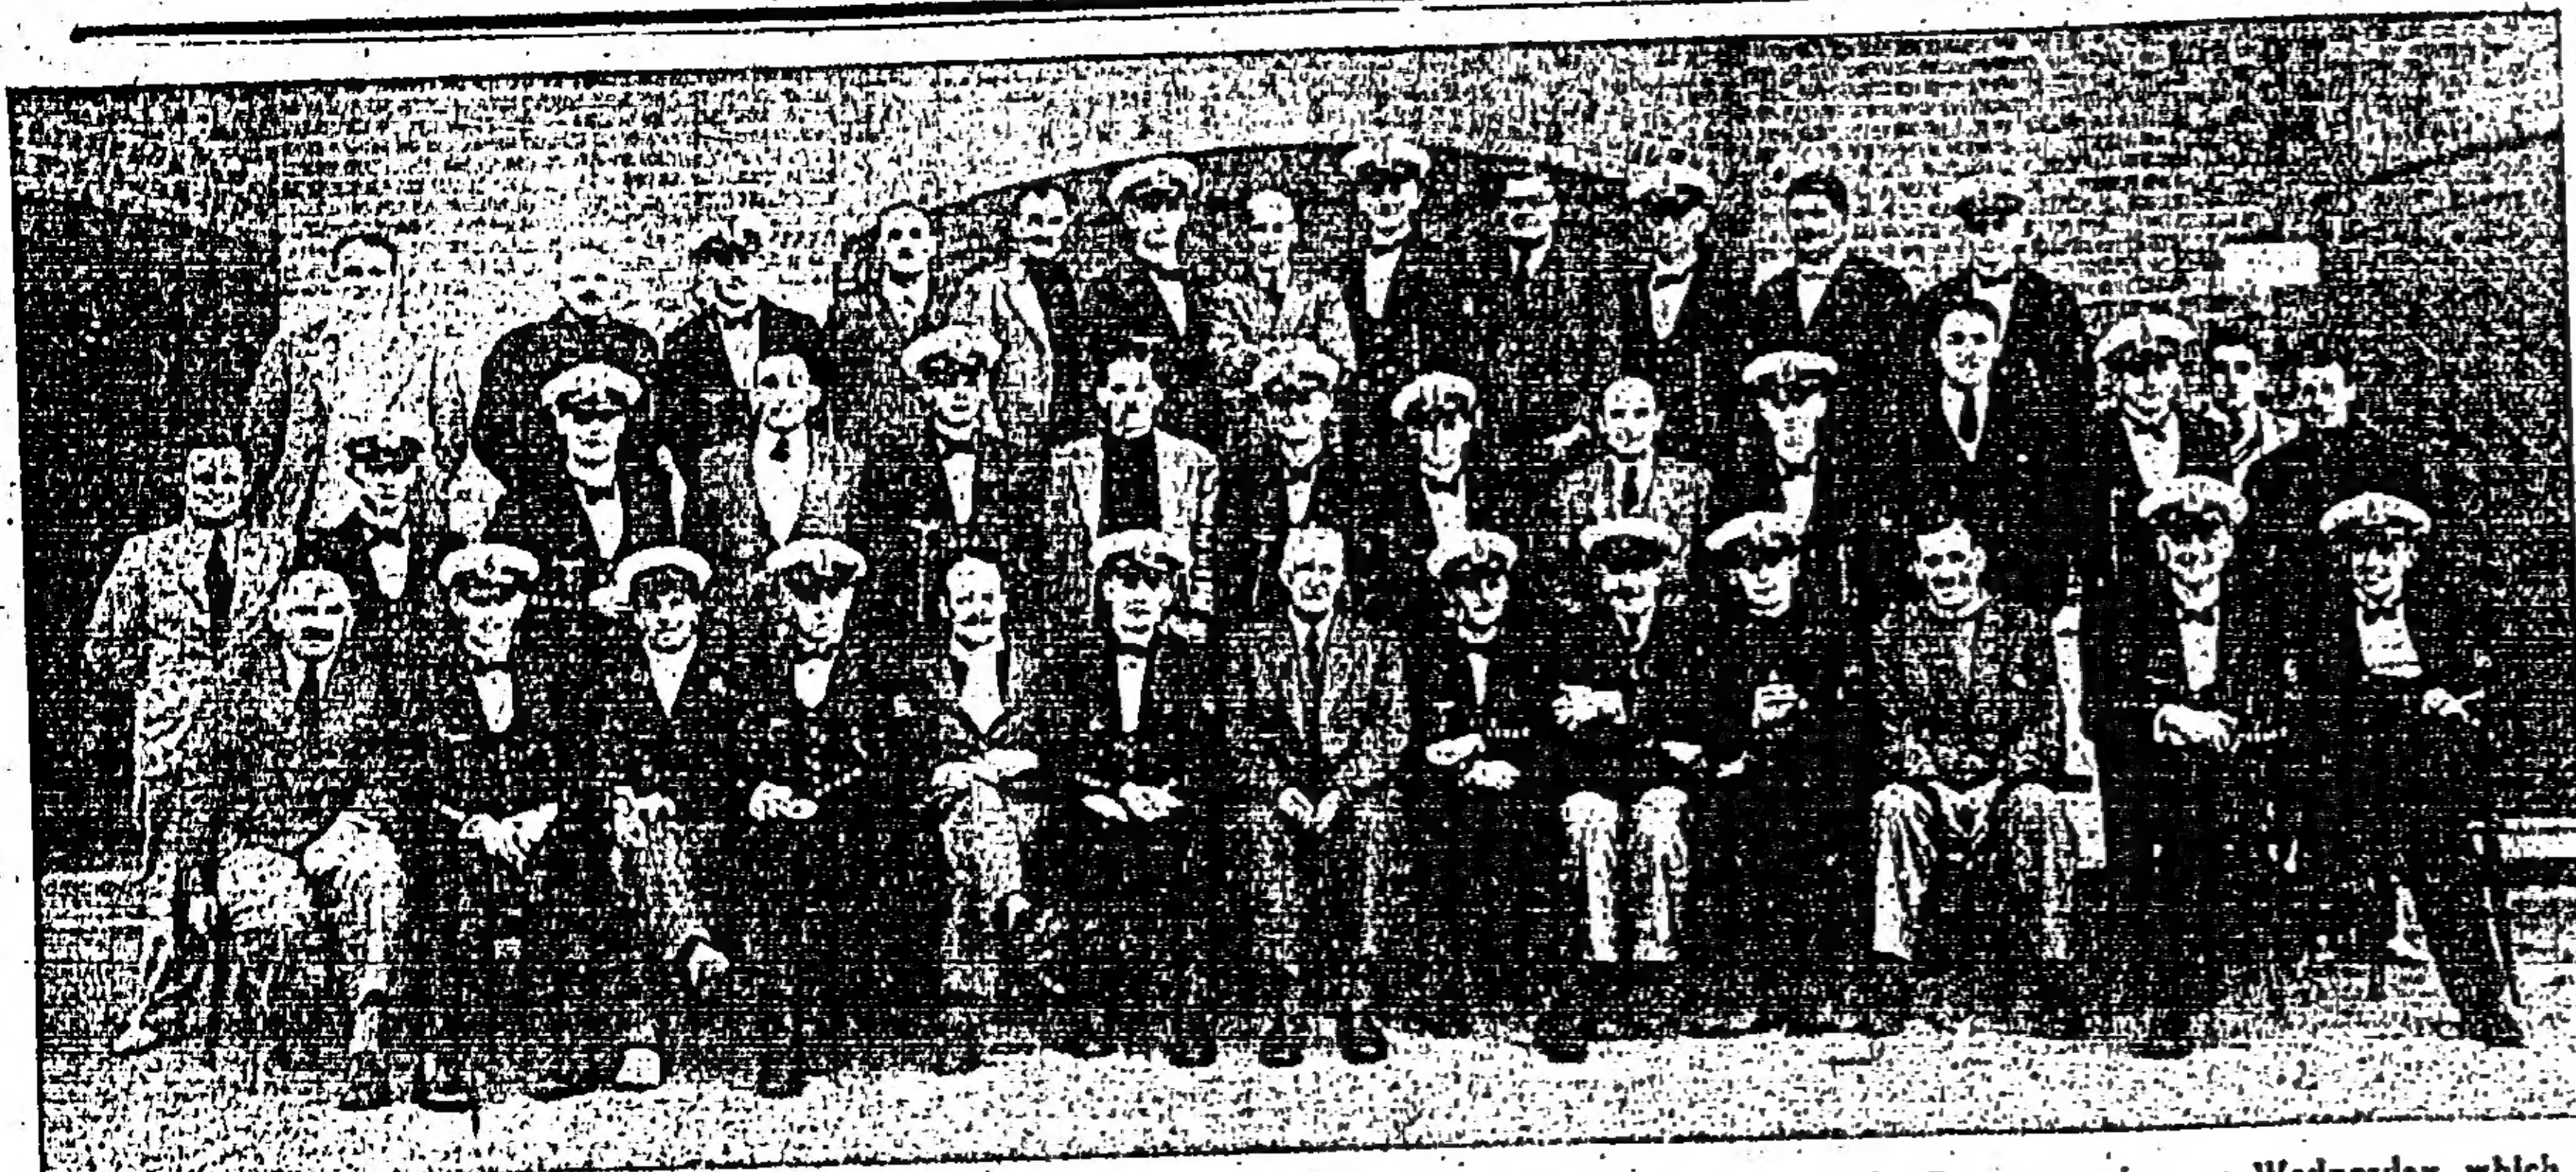

Adelaide was the first city in Australia to run a complete system of tramcars.

The Federal Convention, which led to the federation of the six States into the Commonwealth—the most important event in Australian history—was held in Adelaide.

England's Education Problems

SCHOOL LEAVING AGE DISCUSSED

BILL BEFORE COMMONS

London, Feb. 13. In the House of Commons this afternoon the President of the Board of Education, Mr. Oliver Stanley, moved the second reading of the Education Bill, the principal object of which is the raising of the school-leaving age from 14 to 15. The measure also provides for expenditure on buildings and financial aid to voluntary schools. The estimated cost of the proposed extension of education services is £2,100,000 yearly, of which £1,400,000 will be charged on the Exchequer and £650,000 will fall on local rates. The raising of the school-leaving age will take effect from September, 1937. The Minister explained that the reason for the delay was that it would not be possible for the vast majority of educational authorities to be ready earlier. Some 2,600 additional teachers would have to be trained, buildings would have to be enlarged and schools would have to be reorganised.

Dealing with the clauses providing for exemptions where beneficial employment is available, which, he said, was the most contentious part of the Bill, Mr. Stanley explained that the exemption was intended to be particular, and not general. It would be exemption of a particular child for a particular job, and the Bill gave the local authorities power to see that no trade into which the child entered was an unregulated trade. They still had, the Minister added, to convince parents that the extra year at school was worth while and would have a permanent effect on their lives, prospects and happiness.

The Bill marked a real and substantial step in educational progress, and it was a rather wonderful thing in the circumstances any such thing when elsewhere Governments were discussing rumours of wars and revolutions, repression of crisis and censorship. The rejection of the Bill was moved for the Labour Party by Mr. Lewis Smith, who claimed that the Bill, to which educationalists had looked forward eagerly, had been received with disillusionment and dismay and criticised, in particular the provisions for exemption, which would render the higher age-limit substantially inoperative.

Sir Percy Harris, for the Liberals, welcomed the measure as a great educational advance, but also criticised the exemption clauses. The debate continues.—British Wireless.

MOTION DEFEATED

London, Feb. 13. Questions of education were debated today in the House of Commons, where the Bill raising the school-leaving age from 14 years to 15 was read.

A Labour member's motion that the Government give financial assistance to parents during the children's last year's schooling was defeated, but a motion that not too much home work be given was passed.—Reuters' Bulletin Service.

INTEREST RATE APPROVED

SIX PER CENT. ON RECOVERY LOAN

Nanking, Feb. 14. A joint meeting of the Finance and Economic Committees of the Legislative Yuan yesterday approved the rate of interest on the Recovery Loan at six per cent., as fixed by the Central Political Council. With the Railway Construction Loan, the Committee decided that this should also be six per cent. The measures are being considered at a general meeting of the Legislative Yuan today.—Reuters.

BRITISH DEFENCE

CABINET PARLEY ON MONDAY

London, Feb. 13. Newspapers stated that a special meeting of the Cabinet will be held on Monday, at which consideration will be given to the recommendations of the Committee of Ministers, which is now understood to have completed its examination of the problem of national defence.

The newspapers also anticipate that a white paper setting forth details of the Government's proposals will be issued about the first week in March. When the House of Commons discusses tomorrow a private member's Bill subordinate the three fighting services to a Ministry of Defence, it is understood the Government's attitude to the Bill, and on the question of greater co-operation and coordination in defence matters, will be stated by the Minister without portfolio, Lord Ruskell Percy.—British Wireless.

UNCERTAIN PEPPER MARKET

called Galic, who had a ten per cent. interest in pool Number one and a twenty per cent. interest in Number Two. Mr. Ernest Figgis, a produce merchant, gave evidence that black pepper, at the time of the reported formation of pools and when the partners made their commitments, which ultimately resulted in the loss of £1,000,000, was sixpence per pound compared with eightpence for white pepper. The difference gave a good profit on conversion and added another disturbing element to the market.

Mr. F. L. Fisher, of a firm of auditors, said he saw nothing in the books of the company to indicate pepper commitments. He did not think it necessary in issuing a certificate in connection with James and Shaker's prospectus to mention certain forward positions in tin and shellac, because such firms were bound to have open positions in commodities in which they dealt.

The hearing was adjourned.—Reuters.

TROOPING THE COLOUR

CEREMONY ON KING'S BIRTHDAY

London, Feb. 13. The ceremony of the Trooping of the Colour will take place on King Edward's birthday, June 23. The ceremony will take place, as usual, on the Horse Guards Parade and the King will then, for the first time since his accession, ride at the head of his troops back to Buckingham Palace. It will be recalled that the King, when Prince of Wales acted for his father, King George, at the Trooping of the Colour two years ago and rode at the head of the Guards on their march from the Horse Guards Parade to Buckingham Palace, where he took the salute at the march-past. His Majesty has also arranged to present new colours to six battalions of the Guards at the Horse Guards Parade on July 10.—British Wireless.

MEAT EXPORTS BY NEW ZEALAND

AGREEMENT REACHED WITH BRITAIN

London, Feb. 13. An agreement on meat exports from New Zealand has been reached between the New Zealand and British Governments whereby New Zealand will be able to ship 392,000 cwt. of meat in the first half of this year. Of this total, 120,000 cwt. may be chilled beef.—Reuters' Bulletin Service.

London, Feb. 13. The Minister of Agriculture, Mr. Walter Elliott, announced in the Commons at question-time that an agreement had been reached with the Governments of Australia and New Zealand, and also with the Government of Argentina, on a programme whereby the total arrivals of beef and veal in the United Kingdom during the six months to the end of June next would not exceed the quantities imported in the corresponding period of 1935. It was expected that arrivals from small Empire sources also during this period would not exceed those arranged for the first part of the year.—British Wireless.

WHOLESALE PRICES

FURTHER RISE IN BRITAIN

London, Feb. 13. The Board of Trade index of wholesale prices in January shows an increase in the average of 0.4 per cent. as compared with December and of 4 per cent. as compared with a year ago. This is the sixth successive month of increase, and the rise since July last is nearly 4.5 per cent. Food prices show an advance of only about 2 per cent. on the year, but the January index numbers for all articles, and for industrial materials, and manufactures, are the highest recorded for any month since December and November, 1930, respectively.

DESIGNED 550 NAVAL BADGES

RETIREMENT OF MR. CHARLES FFOULKES

A man who has produced more than 500 designs and mottoes for the Royal Navy has retired from his position as adviser to the Admiralty on the design of ships' badges.

He is Mr. Charles Ffoulkes, who has occupied the position for 17 years.

After producing a large number of unofficial badges for his Majesty's ships, Mr. Ffoulkes, who is curator of the Tower armouries, was invited in 1919 to serve on the Admiralty as adviser to the Admiralty to assist in organising the design of official badges.

Previously these designs were made by, or for, the commanding officer when he commissioned his ship. Many a time a new captain disagreed with his predecessor of the appropriateness of the design, and often a ship carried two or three emblems.

Some of these were humorous, as in the picture of a barnyard pulling beer pumps which typified H.M.S. Hebe, and the portrait of a famous Prime Minister which represented the Vivacious. The same badge was sometimes carried by more than one ship.

In 1919 the Admiralty decided to issue and produce designs officially. The committee to which Mr. Ffoulkes was adviser was appointed, with Sir Rudolph Benluch, as chairman, and Mr. Carr Laughton, then temporary librarian to the Admiralty, as secretary.

"Mannequin Boat" Tests

This committee, using a police launch near Westminster Bridge as a "mannequin boat," made tests and discovered that the badge shapes most easily recognisable on a ship's boat were the circle, the pentagon, the shield and the square set diamond-wise. These were allotted respectively to capital ships, cruisers, destroyers and auxiliaries and other craft.

Now, after a design has been produced and passed, a carving is made and sent to Chatham Dockyard, where it is cast in brass and coloured. Each ship is given a large badge, surmounted by the Naval crown, for the quarter deck and small badges for the boats.

Study in the Natural History Museum, Kew Gardens, the Zoo and books of emblems has been necessary for the design of these badges.

Now that Mr. Ffoulkes has retired his work will be carried on by the College of Heraldry, who are responsible for the colours and badges of the Army.

S. CHINA TEAMS MAKE CHANGES

(By "Veritas")

Neither Lee Wai-tong nor Pau Ka-ping are playing in to-morrow's league clash between South China "A" and "B" at Caroline Hill. Several changes in both teams have been effected, notable among them being the return of Lau Mau to left back, and the transference of George Tsang from centre-forward to right half in the "B" team.

The "A" outfit is trying a new left winger, while the "B" are introducing a new player on the right wing. Despite these changes there should be some spirited and entertaining football to watch in this rehearsal for the Senior Shield semi-final which follows next week.

It is not likely the "A" team will lose their 100 per cent. record, but will most likely seize the opportunity to consolidate their position as leaders of the first division.

Here are the teams which expect to do duty.

S. China "A": Wong Wing; Li Tin-sang and Lau Mau; Leung Wing-chui, Wong Mee-shun and Lee Kwok-wai; The Kwai-shing, Tay Quai-lung, Fung King-cheung, Ip Pak-wa and Wong Ping-chung.

S. China "B": Wong Wah-guy; Lee Kam and Yu Hing-yuen; George Tsang, Lam Tak-po and Henry Young; Ip Yun-po, Lai Shui-wing, Ho Ka-keung, Cheuk Shek-kam and Yeung Shui-yick.

Police Still Without Tommy Pile

POSITIONAL CHANGES

Police are making personnel and positional changes for their league match against the Royal Artillery (Stoncutters) on Sunday.

Tommy Pile is still suffering from a damaged foot, and is being rested for next week's Shield encounter. Britain, who appeared at centre half against the Athletic is not playing and Gough returns to the pivotal position flanked as usual by North and Parker.

Up forward Green, who last week appeared at inside left, took over the right wing berth with Brooks restored to inside left. The team will line up as follows: McHardy; Blackburn and C. Pile; North, Gough and Parker; Green, Stevens, Johnson, Brooks and Moss.

This combination should be good enough to obtain a comfortable win against the Gunners.

L. G. ROBERTSON RETURNS

TO STRENGTHEN THE CLUB

With L. G. Robertson back in the team the Club are fielding a maximum strength combination against the Royal Artillery on Saturday.

Robertson, however, will operate at left half instead of his customary right half berth, as Skinner is more at home on the right.

George Hill returns to the defence and otherwise the line-up is as usual, namely:

Rodger; Hill and S. Strange; Skinner, Forrow, and Robertson; Fowler, Brown, Elliot, K. Strange and Bickford.

STIFF TASK

Club face a stiff task even though they have the assistance of playing on their own ground. Royal Artillery have proved beyond doubt that they are a very strong side. Their achievement last week in being the first team to lower the colours of South China "B" is a good enough indication of their abilities, and as I believe, they will be at full strength, they will probably start slight favourites in this interesting encounter.

Club defence is bound to be severely tested, and no little responsibility will fall on the half backs. Possibly too the soldiers' rearguard will be given a stiffer task than last week, as the Club undoubtedly have a useful attack. If, and when, it functions correctly.

Here is the Canadian skiing team which is taking part in the Winter Olympics at Garmisch. They are attracting a great deal of attention not only by their skill in this difficult sport, but by their startlingly original costumes.

Cricket Championship May Be Decided To-morrow

LEAGUE LEADERS AND CLUB PLAYING IN ALL-IMPORTANT MATCH

(By R. Abbit)

In my last article I wrote on the position of the struggle for the Shield in the Senior Division. The match between the I.R.C. and the Club to-morrow, as I said, is the great factor and though I cannot manage to see it myself—as I am making what is probably my final appearance in Senior League cricket myself—I hope to get eye witness accounts from both sides.

Suffice it to say here that if the I.R.C. win they are sure of the Shield. Even if they draw the worst that can befall them is a tie with the Kowloon Cricket Club. I have not yet seen the sides but I imagine that both Clubs will have out their strongest eleven. I find it difficult to believe that the I.R.C. will win outright, for the Club can put out a side in which every man is capable of making fifty. Persim and Minu are very good, but as I said last week there is great need for at least one good change bowler. The wicket at Soukumpoo now is not nearly so disconcerting to visitors as it used to be. I do not know who the I.R.C. groundsman—or greenkeeper, if he prefers the title—may be, but he had done wonders with the ground since last season.

On the other hand the Club bowling is not too strong and the I.R.C. batting, though not extra strong, may well be useful enough to cope with it, unless Growder's big break may upset them. A draw is a very probable result, but if I won the toss I should put the other side in, I think, which ever side I was on!

As regards the other game the Civil Service have to travel out to Pokfulam and play the University. Were the game at Happy Valley I should tip the Civil Service to win, I think, especially in view of their very interesting game at Pokfulam and a very open one I think. A lot will depend on whether Gosno can do a day on or not. I would not like to bet either way on the result.

A non-League game will take place between the Army and Kowloon at Soukumpoo. It should be an enjoyable affair and the Army will have to go all out to average the debacle in the League game. I saw that Garthwaite played on Sunday last, so he may be able to bowl again. If not I should not be surprised if the K.C.C. bats were too good for the Army bowling. If I were skipper I'd start with Elvin and Ballard and switch the former off as soon as Lay began to hit him hard. I rather fancy Lay prefer the fastish straight up and down stuff to hit, but I may be wrong. I fancy there will be a draw if both sides turn out at full strength.

JUNIOR DIVISION

In the Junior division I think the Civil Service at home should beat the University second, and the K.C.C. if at full strength should beat the Recreio. But of course the great tussle of the day is between K.C.C. and the Police over at Kowloon. At present the Police are four points up with a match more played but if K.C.C. can finish their matches on a ball or the other—then they will be potentially ahead of them. These so far as I know are the only games in League matches. They are all down for decision and they are all League matches. The I.R.C. were to-day but I understand the game was put back to Sunday last and though the R.A.M.C. did better with the bat than against the Civil Service they were beaten by eight wickets. So the I.R.C. have now played eight matches—won six, lost one, drawn one with nineteen points. So far as I know there are no other games in the Junior Division.

LAST SATURDAY'S GAMES

With reference to the Junior Cricket games played on Saturday last I was very interested to see that between the Civil Service second eleven and the R.A.M.C. it was an exhibition of almost incredible batting on both sides. Batting first the Soldiers never looked like doing well but for three clouts by Pto. Glendening they would never have got 40 runs. Ling bowled very well off so soon. It is quite a true story that I was surprised to get 4 for 15, but I think his figures rather flatter directly he had bowled. Apps, and Ling put back. However, it looked easy enough but the Civil Service batting never recovered from a bad

K.C.C. CRICKETERS JOIN THE NAVY!

To Play Match Against Hongkong Press

Frank Goodwin, B. Lay and A. Hyde-Lay, three prominent members of the Kowloon Cricket Club have joined the Navy!

But not to see the world; to play cricket. They have been given the imposing ranks of "Marine," "Stoker" and "P.O." respectively, and as such will participate in the cricket match between the Navy and Press at King's Park on Sunday.

"P.O." Hyde-Lay is acting as official scorer, duties which he weekly carries out for the K.C.C. first eleven. The Navy's team for this match is as follows:

Comdr. Hayter, Pay-Comdr. Hargrave, Lieut. Bramwell, Lieut. Harpur, Lieut. Bartley, Lt-Comdr. Barry, Lieut. Wright, "Stoker" Lay, A. B. Bathurst, Tel. Tunnell, and "Marine" Goodwin.

Scorer: "P.O." Hyde-Lay.

Start. Snook kept a good length and turned the ball a lot from the off. He is however much too fond of appealing under the new L.B.W. rule. He got his first wicket from a ball pitched at least 3 inches clear of the off stump and the batsman was deliberately covered up. Immediately afterwards, Strange started for a run and was sent back by his partner, who incidentally can run faster than anyone on the side, and was out by inches. Crutwell and H. D. Ling made quite a long stand but their running was atrocious and they could easily have got in singles more than the seven runs by which the Civil Service lost. F. J. Ling hit gallantly to try and bring off a victory, but he got no support. As a matter of fact there is plenty of cricket in the side, but with the exception of one or two, they require coaching, and the device of a lot of it, to bring out their full cricketing ability.

THE K.C.C. WIN AGAIN

The Kowloon second string did very well to beat Craigengower and are now in a pretty good position in the League table. Quinell is I believe a new-comer—anyway I do not recollect meeting the name before. His figures of 7-0-18-5 were excellent, and he probably saved Kowloon from a defeat as they only won by sixteen runs. The Navy II match was off and a Naval side played a Club side and got soundly beaten. Stein effected a brilliant catch in front of the tent to put Bramwell out. The latter went in very late and got quite a few runs. Kilbree, for the Club scored close on ninety I am told.

SOME "EYE-OPENING" GALLOPS

THE DIFFICULTIES OF STUDYING "FORM"

ROYAL SCOT STILL THE BEST DERBY CANDIDATE

(By "Captain Foster")

There was really a good attendance of interested owners, rail's critics and racing enthusiasts at the Happy Valley over the week-end and also on Wednesday morning to watch the gallops, and there were some eye-openers, especially the performances of the Derby griffins, Honeymoon Eve, Thunder Bay and Silversmith. The Sub-Griffins such as Mountain View, The Gorilla, Unicorn and Wild Cat gave their usual display of form and the chief feature of the "Aussies" was the outstanding gallop of Centre Court. The Dunlin and Yo Ho went well over the Champion Course. With the exception of Centre Court, all others were galloped on the Grass Course and same will not be open again until the race days.

It is not to be expected that there will be any more long distance gallops, and from now onwards, we shall certainly see some fast sprints over a mile or under just to tune the griffins up for the Annual Meeting to be held to-morrow week. I am sure the trainers must feel a great relief that their jobs during the last five weary months or so in getting the ponies fit are over, and the success of each individual now largely depends upon the element of luck, which is no small factor in racing.

WHAT ABOUT WEIGHTS?

During the last two months I have been watching the training of China and Australian griffins very carefully, and it must be clearly understood that all my selections of the good ones were based on the training times returned by the ponies, but were they carrying over or under the scale of weight for inches? This question is, I admit, very important on my part to ask, but, one must agree that it has a bearing in spotting the winner. Students of form will appreciate the fact that there is no such thing as "dead fact" and the more we try to study the form of ponies (especially China), the more we are disappointed with the science of racing in which condition plays an important part. We must not overlook the matter of stable secrets.

The publication of the training times has always been a useful guide, but it was a pity that the state of the ponies in every galloping morning was not mentioned. If this could be arranged, coupled with the weights carried, the value of the training times would be indispensable. However, the training times are very useful, not only to the racing owners, but to all the trainers, then, every owner would undoubtedly start his candidate for the Blue Riband and the Stewards would have to face a big problem in providing a race course big enough to hold the field.

With due respect to Thunder Bay who put up a wonderful gallop over the 1 1/4 miles last Friday in 2:43.3/5, I regret to say that I cannot see him beating Royal Scot. I have, absolutely, no prejudice against the Royal Scot, but I consider Royal Scot is a better animal for the Blue Riband. Thunder Bay's gallop of last Friday was the best, so far, over one and a quarter miles but he was all out at the end and finished the last quarter in 34 seconds.

A SILVERSMITH WHISPER

King's Sceptre and King's Lead were given a test gallop last Saturday over the Derby course and they took 3:33.4/5, to cover the circuit. The finish of these two ponies was quite good and the last half-a-mile was negotiated in 1:01.2/5. Their last mile was covered in 2:11.3/5, and it is worth remembering that their last 1 1/4 miles were galloped in 2:50.4/5.

It has been whispered that Silversmith has a good chance for a place in the Hongkong Derby and I don't doubt it for he certainly went well last Sunday with Mr. Fih over the course. The whole time was 3:32.2/5, and he came home inside 32 seconds and ridden out. The last half was 1:04.4/5. They say that Silversmith is related to Wild Life who, run second to Liberty Day in 1932 Hongkong Derby, but readers will please bear in mind that I have not seen the birth certificate.

The gallop of Honeymoon Eve with Mr. Needs as a cox over 1 1/4 miles last Saturday was well timed and the quarters were, 30, 35.3/5, 34.2/5, 32.2/5 and 31.3/5. Novice jockeys should take a note that the combination jumped off with 30 seconds and even subsequent quarter was negotiated in less time. The whole was covered in 2:50 flat and Royal Wedding Eve, who escorted Honeymoon Eve from the mile post, could not keep up the pace at the finish.

If the Hongkong Derby were to be run off to-morrow, my fancy would be Royal Scot, Thunder Bay and Honeymoon Eve.

An anticipatory brain is an ill possession for a golfer, and is prone to take attention away from the task of hitting the ball in the centre of the club face.—H. H. Hilton.

FANLING NATIONAL

NEXT SUNDAY'S MEETING

MY SELECTIONS

(By "Captain Foster")

There were several handsome dividends paid out at the winter meeting held at Kwantai on February 2, but, I am afraid that at the Grand National meeting to be staged on Sunday, the "divi" will be on the small side.

It was ten years ago that the inaugural meeting of the Fanling Hunt Club was held at Kwantai on February 16, and there were five races on the card. The main event was, of course, the Fanling National (as was then known) over a course of two miles, and to further the interest, H. R. H. Prince George, now Duke of Kent, kindly donated a handsome Silver Cup to the winner. The first classic was won by John Smith and was ridden by Mr. F. A. Pollock.

There was no change in the conditions of the Fanling National, run in the following year, but in 1928, the distance was altered to two and a quarter miles and the event was named the Fanling Grand National. However, two years later, the Fanling Club suffered a great loss in their founder and master, the late Dr. Pierce Grove, and in memory of the interest he had shown and the hard work rendered to the Club, the Stewards thought it fit to associate his name with the main event, and from 1930, this endurance race was known as the Fanling Grand National and Pierce Grove Memorial Cup. In 1931, the distance was further lengthened to two and a half miles, but was reverted back to 2 1/4 miles in the following year, and so remained up to last season. On Sunday the two Grand Nationals are over a course of two miles and very poor entry has been received for the Australian contest.

THE COMPETITORS

It will be recalled that the 1933 Grand National drew only three starters, namely, Christmas Frolic, Duke of Milan and Loch Ryan, and the first named pony, owing to his past performances, was made a hot favourite. However, after half of the circuit had been covered, Mr. Stanton on Christmas Frolic had a nasty tumble and Duke of Milan went ahead to win in easy fashion.

Pride of Tsingtau, who won the Grand National last year, has been given the post of honour with 168 lbs. and Burgmaster, the second pony, has to carry 166 lbs. which is only a difference of 2 lbs. The latter pony had a pull of 5 lbs. last year and for a beating of "many lengths," he gets an allowance of only 7 lbs. I am afraid this adjustment of weights will not bring them together and that the post first without having any trouble, to be followed by Burgmaster and Festival Eve.

There is less than a handful of entries in the Australian Grand National and Plummary, after his fine performance in the New South Wales

GORILLA IS BEST OF THE SUBS

(By "Captain Foster")

I don't believe in promoting too soon but after a "General Inspection" on the Sub-Griffins, I cannot find a better pony than The Gorilla and I therefore nominate him to lead the procession in the Valley Stakes.

Messrs. Tester and Abraham have been very lucky in the past with their draws of Subscription Griffins but, as fate would have it, this out fit has never won a Valley Stakes and it seems that their ambition will be accomplished this year.

Space does not permit to enumerate the success of Bing Boy, who was one of the best in 1927, and The Ape was the other who won the Hongkong Autumn Sub-Griffins Championships with Mr. Harriman up in 1929. It is amusing to relate that both these two Subs of Messrs. Tester and Abraham were third in the Valley Stakes. The "Panther," who was second in the Valley Stakes 1933, lost the coveted prize by half-a-length and last year The Chetani (Mr. Frost) succumbed to Lucky Strike by two lengths. However, The Gorilla does not require any further write up and this pony has always finished well over any distances. With a little joss, The Gorilla should pull through. It is with much regret to report that Hellebore pulled up lame after the gallop last Wednesday and his chance to start at the Annual Race Meeting are remote. He was coming on very nicely and his gallop of Saturday last in company with Blue Ribbon over a mile was not too bad.

Unicorn (Mr. Needs) did not do a bad gallop over 1 1/4 miles and the full time was 2:54.2/5, finishing the last two furlongs in both 32 seconds. This pony is not ranked among the first ten, but is worth watching at the Carnival.

Last Sunday, Mr. T. L. Wong was trying to find out more about the energy and speed of Mountain View and Wild Cat, and both of them failed to impress in the home run. It was asking too much of the ordinary Subscription griffin, nevertheless the whole times were all that could be desired. They went singly galloped over 1 1/4 miles was two-fifths second. Wild Cat took 2:50.3/5, to length. However, The Gorilla does the trip. However, these two Subs must win races at the meeting.

Exciting Badminton Match Last Night

First Men's Doubles Success Of Season For Kowloon Tong

(By "Veritas").

No more exciting finish to a league match has been seen in badminton this season than last night's men's doubles encounter between Kowloon Tong and St. Andrew's "B", played on the former's court.

After securing a long lead of 4-1, Kowloon Tong faltered and it required a brilliant recovery on the part of P. C. Leung and J. M. Pong to win the eighth game and with it the match. Eventually the home team won by the odd game in nine, Peter Sin and B. K. Wong just failing to annex the last of the evening, after leading 20-15.

Kowloon Tong thus scored their first victory of the season in the men's doubles, and this made the club's third successive success, two mixed doubles having been won during the past week.

LEUNG AND PONG

The home team owed everything to Leung and Pong, who illustrated the rapid progress they have made in the game by winning all three encounters.

Gray and White, after beating St. Andrew's first two couples unexpectedly lost to Dawson and Kirby following a terrific struggle. The visiting pair, who played extremely well throughout, took long leads of 11-4, 15-6, 17-11 and 20-15 before the Kowloon Tong couple recovered to draw up to 19-20. Then service changed twice without any addition to the score before the visitors snatched the one point necessary to give them game.

A very similar contest resulted from their all-important game with Leung and Pong which followed. Kirby and Dawson swept into a lead of 10-2, but were then caught and found themselves led 11-10. The Kowloon Tong players managed to retain this narrow advantage after a series of fast rallies and clever shots and forged ahead to win after they had reached 18-17.

BRILLIANT ST. JOHN'S WIN

St. John's accomplished their best performance of the season last evening when they entertained and defeated Recreio "B" by six games to three. The all-round strength of the Saints was well demonstrated by the fact that each pair won two games.

But for H. A. Barros and A. E.

Xavier the Recreio would have suffered a much heavier reverse. The Portuguese first string collected three games.

Perhaps the outstanding performers for the winners were J. Bennett and David Kwok, who beat Basto and Remedios after a "setted" game and also defeated Silva and Alves by five games to two. They gave Barros and Xavier a close game, scoring 13 aces.

Details of the games follow.

KOWLOON TONG v. ST. ANDREW'S "B"

P. C. Leung and J. M. Pong (Kowloon Tong) beat A. S. Bliss and M. Well 21-11; beat S. A. Broadbridge and N. A. E. Mackay 21-18; beat J. Dawson and L. Kirby 21-17.

S. A. Gray and G. A. White (Kowloon Tong) beat Bliss and Well 21-15; beat Broadbridge and Mackay 21-10; lost to Dawson and Kirby 19-21; lost to B. K. Wong and P. Sin (Kowloon Tong) 19-21; lost to Broadbridge and Mackay 20-23; lost to Dawson and Kirby 4-21.

ST. JOSEPH'S v. RECREIO "B"

At the St. John's Cathedral Hall last night, the St. John's Club defeated the Recreio "B" by 6 sets to 3.

F. H. Kwok and L. V. Cat (St. John's) lost to H. A. Barros and A. E. Xavier 15-21; beat F. J. Remedios and A. J. Basto 21-14; beat P. N. Silva and E. A. Alves 21-7.

Roland Koh and Norman Smith (St. John's) lost to Barros and Xavier 13-21; beat Remedios and Basto 21-17; beat Silva and Alves 21-17.

J. Bennett and David Kwok (St. John's) lost to Barros and Xavier 13-21; beat Remedios and Basto 21-17; beat Silva and Alves 21-10.

BADMINTON ASSN: TO MEET

A Vice-President Leaving Colony

Representatives of clubs are being called to a meeting of the Badminton Association on Friday, February 21 in the Board Room of the S. C. M. Post at 6.15 p.m. to discuss certain matters.

They will receive with regret the resignation of Dr. H. D. Matthews as one of the Vice-Presidents of the Association. Dr. Matthews is shortly leaving the Colony.

Another subject will be to consider the date and place for the presentation of the league trophies. Tai Koo's formal application to withdraw from the men's doubles division will be presented to the meeting for consideration and that decision will be made concerning the team's league record to date. It will more than likely be expunged from the league table.

den out to do the times, but, readers will please make a note that the last mile was performed in 1.56.1/5, as against the record of 1.45 established by Snay Face (Mr. Pih) on April 22, 1935. Taking into account that Yo Ho went alone, the gallop was a startling one and in Mr. Needa's mount for the Rotoy-Hill Derby.

In the same morning, Tinsmith (Mr. Pih) was sent over the Derby distance and he took 3.21.4/5, to journey the tour, finishing the home run in 20.4/5 seconds. This was not a bad gallop.

Electron owned by three practitioners was given a good spin over a mile and Mr. Davis had a job to steady the animal. He was full of running and took 2.03.4/5 to travel the circuit. Double Finesse has returned to the course after an absence of about a month but I doubt if she will be in pink condition for the big Meeting. Able Warrior is out of the "hospital" and in having slow work. In a try out last Saturday between Holiday Eve and Lancashire Lad over a mile, the former finished half a length ahead and their time was 2.13.1/5, romping home in 27 seconds.

IN TENNIS SINGLES FINAL

GREAT MATCH EXPECTED

THE PROSPECTS

(By "Veritas").

Whether victory to-morrow goes to Mrs. Nora Wilson or Miss Rosamund Hancock, a new name will be engraved on the bowl of the ladies singles tennis championship trophy.

This will be Miss Hancock's second appearance in the final; she lost her first one to Mrs. James in 1933 after having the match "in her pocket". On the other hand Mrs. Wilson becomes a finalist for the first time, and this in her first year of competition in the Colony event.

With both players showing top form during recent weeks to-morrow's match at the U.S.R.C. promises to be one of exceptional interest and entertainment.

Mrs. Wilson has touched that form which earned her such an enviable reputation before she came to Hongkong, and I think it can be said without dispute that this winter the Colony has seen Mrs. Wilson play tennis as she really can play it. A re-awakened interest in the game following her Interport visit to Shanghai has seen Mrs. Wilson regain all her finest strokes, and it is no disparagement to other players here to suggest that on her present form Mrs. Wilson is the finest player in the Colony.

Her stylish and effective play in the singles semi-final and the doubles final during the last fortnight has created a profound impression, and she is bound to take the court to-morrow a firm favourite.

EXCELLENT FETTER

But Miss Hancock is also in excellent fettle right now as witness her clever display against Mrs. Kayll in the singles when she had the distinction of beating the reigning champion, and her splendid work in both the mixed-doubles and ladies doubles finals, from which she emerged on the winning side in both.

Miss Hancock's biggest improvement is her backhand which is now very dependable. Her forehand ground strokes have always been the most potent factors in her game, so that she cannot now play a winning game from the baseline against most players in Hongkong.

She has not the forecourt skill of Mrs. Wilson and this may react unfavourably for her; albeit it was noticeable that although Mrs. Kayll is also a strong volleyer and overhand worker, Miss Hancock made her placements sufficiently clever to keep Mrs. Kayll away from the forecourt.

If she can do this against Mrs. Wilson she has quite a chance of winning. But there is, another stroke which she has reason to feel a little apprehensive about. That is Mrs. Wilson's forehand cross-court drive which in this case will be directed to her backhand. I rather suspect this shot will pave the way for some typical net raids by Mrs. Wilson. Miss Hancock's chief task most likely will be to counter that shot with good defensive returns and then to manoeuvre for her own favourite forehand drives across court and down the line.

One can always expect a good battle of wits when right-handed and left-handed players come into opposition, and courtcraft and tactics may play a highly important part in the result of this match.

The first business of the meeting was to receive the applications of Queen's College and the Union Sports Club for affiliation to the Hongkong Hockey Association. Both applications were accepted by the Council.

A letter from the Macao hockey authorities was then read, Capt. Costa, of the Macao team, suggested in his letter that the Interport match be played on Saturday, March 7, and the match against the Civilian on Sunday, March 8.

The Council accepted these two dates and decided that further trials be held for the selection of players to represent Hongkong.

HOW TO PLAY GUARD

GUARDS today aren't the big men of yesterday; they are necessarily light and fast, for they must pull out and run interference on all end runs and trick maneuvers. However, a guard must carry enough beef that he can hold his own on defense.

Proper stance of a guard is a crouch with the feet spread so that the toe of the outside foot is on a line with the heel of the inside foot. Very little weight is on the hands. From this position, the player can charge ahead, or pull out of line to aid a runner.

The charge should be low and from underneath, so as to lift the defense away from the man who is carrying the ball.

After a defensive guard has taken care of his immediate opponent, his next duty is to look for the man with the ball.

O'SHAUGHNESSY'S BOY

ADAPTED BY BEATRICE FABER
from the
Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer
PICTURE

THE HOOP OF FIRE

CHAPTER IV

A number of the performers stood about idly in the centre ring, waiting to see the first rehearsal of the new animal stunt.

Jeff looked at the caged tiger, then muttered, "Boy, am I happy man presence ain't required inside this cage, during this performance."

As Windy came stumbling up, the onlookers eyed him curiously, then nudged each other.

"Say," Jeff whispered to Franz, "don't you think I oughta put real bullets in this revolver 'stead of blanks?"

"He only uses that to frighten the cat if she gets tough," Franz answered tersely, "but if the fire does get her fighting mad I'm prepared." He touched the rifle at his side.

Windy approached the cage door, a whip in one hand and the pistol in the other. When he had entered, the door was closed and locked behind him. Moving forward, he signalled the tiger to spring into the cage. At this moment however, Windy lurched against the tiger's mounting stand. There was a tense murmur from the watchers as he stooped to fight it. Then a shrill cry.

"Look out!" Hastings shouted in sharp terror for the tiger was even then springing through the air.

But in a split second of time Windy had jumped to one side. At the same instant the end of his whip cracked sharply in the animal's face. It crouched where it landed, a furious, snarling mound of fur.

Now, fiercely concentrating on the job at hand Windy cracked his whip again, forcing the tiger up, until it mounted the platform on the elephant's back.

His shouted commands, interspersed with the sharp singing snap of his whip, rang throughout the snarl of the animal and reached for the burning brand.

The flame flared high. Everyone's breath was held as they saw the elephant crouch, then lean to one side, his little eyes gleaming with terror. The tiger's first reaction was to bare his teeth in alarm. Then she uttered a sudden sharp snarl, clutched to spring. One shot from Windy's pistol however and she subsided.

Windy next applied the torch to the cotton waste and soon the flames were licking their way greedily up the side of the hoop.

Th elephant watched, swaying from side to side, with the snarling, spitting light on its back.

"Steady, Rajah, steady," Windy said. "Hee... hee!"

Rajah obediently lifted one foot to take a forward step. Then, the hoop of fire overcame his fear of man. Trampling wildly, he sidestepped Windy with his trunk, tossing him, a helpless dummy, against the bars. Instantly, the tiger, seizing his opportunity, leaped at Windy with bared fangs.

There was a horrified uproar. Above the din, Hastings was yelling, "Franz, Franz!"

Franz aimed the rifle, frantically trying to separate the struggling Windy and the tiger in his vision. "Pry him loose. Get a hose," Hastings bellowed. "Shoot, Franz, shoot!"

And now Windy was caught in the hoop of fire, the enraged tiger clamping at him madly. Above the shrieks of the women and the shouts of the men, could be heard the victorious trumpeting of the elephant. Then two shots were fired.

The elephant had dropped many of its leaves on the day that found Windy in the hospital office, facing the doctor.

"Sit down Mr. O'Shaughnessy," Doctor Winters said pleasantly. "I suppose you don't feel too badly about leaving us."

Windy turned a haggard, drawn countenance to him. Nevertheless, he managed a polite smile. "Guess I'm kinda glad to."

The doctor nodded cheerily. "Well, we're happy you're well enough to go. You've had a long siege of it. Here's a letter for you... just came."

Windy grasped the envelope nervously in his left hand. "I suppose I owe you folks a heap of money."

"Not a cent. The insurance company took care of everything. He watched Windy covertly as he saw him fumbling with the letter. "Let me do that for you."

A deep-dyed flush of shame suffused Windy's face. Not even to be able to do a simple thing like opening a letter. He stared through weak misty eyes at his right sleeve which dangled empty by his side.

Then he squinted at the letter the doctor had placed before him. "Reckon my eyes musta gone back on me too. It's all blurred." Not that it made any difference now, he thought dazedly. Eyes or ears, what did anything matter when a man's whole world had been snatched from him?

The anaesthetic often has that effect," the doctor reassured him. "I'll pass. Would you like me to read it for you?"

"Please."

Doctor Winters adjusted his pince-nez, then began. "Dear Windy: Got your telegram from the hospital that you're ready to blow. Boy, that's good news. You can pick us up in Dubuque."

The doctor's voice continued, although he had seen

Windy's glance fall and shift away. "... Now don't get the idea that because you've had a little accident you've got to find yourself a shelf and sit on it. For my money you're as good as you ever were. If you still want to do the Fire Trick it's okay with me. I know you can do it..."

As clearly as though he were looking at a photograph, the doctor saw where Windy's thoughts had fled with tension and for a long terrifying instant he was back in the cage, surrounded by fire with a murderous tiger at his throat.

The doctor made a small sound as if to recall Windy's errant attention. There was a short embarrassed pause. Then he continued reading.

"About Cora and the kid..." the doctor heard the hissing intake of breath. "... I'm afraid I've got to give you some bad news. The agency has given up. They can't take any more and so they've quit. Maybe we can hire some other dick who'll do better. Now you hop on that train soon's you get this because we're all waiting for you. The elephants miss you, the cats miss you and most of all, your friend, Dan Hastings."

Having finished, the doctor folded the letter meticulously and replaced it in the envelope. He studiously ignored the open trembling of Windy's hand. Searching among the papers on his desk he picked up a timetable. "Now there's a train to Dubuque at ten-thirty. You can catch that if you hurry. There's another at one if you want to stay over for lunch..." He broke off as Windy quietly rose.

"Thanks, Doctor, but... I ain't goin' back there."

So it had come to an issue at last. The doctor faced him squarely. "There's only one way that you can overcome... this thing that's happened to you." He eyed Windy's sleeve. "No... not that, or your son. It's this other thing. Windy sat down in slow astonishment. "How did you know what's happened to me?"

(What do the doctor's words mean? What HAS happened to Windy? How much longer will he and Stubby be kept apart? Don't miss to-morrow's thrilling instalment.)

A Wise Precaution!

Cook: "Did they say anything about the cooking?"

New Maid: "No, but I noticed them praying before they started eating."

A wise precaution when you run up against poorly cooked food, or food doubtful in quality, is a little dose of Pinkettes. These ideal laxative pills assist digestion, help to cleanse the food tract, and prevent the accumulation of waste matter. They dispel constipation, loosen up the liver, keep the skin free from blemishes such as pimples and boils, sweeten the breath, make the eyes bright and clear, relieve pain.

Pinkettes act in a gentle normal way, they neither gripe nor purge, and are non-habit-forming. Chemists everywhere sell them.

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Three outstanding writers in the world of fiction and the theatre collaborated on the new Paramount romance, "So Red The Rose," opening to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre. Margaret Sullivan is the star, and the supporting cast includes Randolph Scott, Walter Connolly, Janet Beecher, Harry Elber and Elizabeth Patterson. First credit goes to Stark Young, who wrote the novel "So Red The Rose," which for a year now has retained its spot on the list of national best-sellers. A Southerner by birth, Mr. Young recreates a romance of that time in our history known as the War between the States. With understanding and sympathy he has told a story of young love in those turbulent days when men and women stood steadfast for the things in which they believed. The screen version of this novel was entrusted to two well known writers, Lawrence Stallings, co-author of "What Price Glory," and Edwin Justus Mayer, who wrote "Children of Darkness," and "Firebrand." Margaret Sullivan plays the role Vallette Bedford, the heroine of the story, Randolph Scott is cast as Duncan, her sweetheart. Walter Connolly plays the role of Vallette's kindly father, Janet Beecher portrays Vallette's mother, Elizabeth Patterson is cast as crusty Mary Cherry, the impoverished and peculiar relative of the Bedford family. The director of "So Red The Rose" is King Vidor, maker of many past successes including "The Big Parade" and "Our Daily Bread." "Mutiny on the Bounty" is in many ways, the moving of a large motion picture company to a distant location. This was proved when more than 100 players and workmen and many tons of equipment were transported to the island at Catalina Island to film the major scenes for "The Bounty," opening Saturday at the King's and Alhambra

Theatres. Time schedules and expedient transportation offered the most difficult problems. Equipment transported to the island by the Bounty, two barges, towed by tugs. This included three generating plants, two "room" trucks, several automobiles, studio lamps, props, 100 foot Tahitian war canoe, 15 outriggers, two score towering palm trees, as many breadfruit trees, 8 huge banyan trees, a dozen or more and electrical equipment, lumber and a thousand and one other things required for the expedition. To house the company, the entire isthmus tent city, the historic Banning house and the other resort structures were leased by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. For water transportation between the isthmus and the Bounty, and the fleet of eight high-speed water-taxis were used. Daily, the Betty-O Avalon to the isthmus, natives took skinned back and forth between the isthmus and the mainland, and the isthmus and Avalon, fifty minutes away carrying film "rushes," special messages, etc. While the major scenes were filmed aboard the Bounty, sailing full-rigged from ten to twenty miles off the island, labour crews worked night and day building roads to two distant locations, inaccessible to motor cars. One of these roads, miles in length, reaching to "Matavai Bay," where the Bounty was to be driven onto a reef. With Director Frank Lloyd as general in the field, and Producer Irving G. Thalberg directing the operations from "G.H.Q." at the M-G-M studios, "Mutiny on the Bounty" was filmed with a cast headed by Charles Laughton, Clark Gable, Franchot Tone and more than fifty featured players.

"Picture Snatcher" Moviegoers recognize that there is no faster entertainment these days than a James Cagney picture, and his latest Warner Bros. hit, "Picture Snatcher," now at the Star Theatre, is no exception. In fact it is probably the fastest paced film that he had ever made. In so far as action, story, punch, clever dialogue, brilliant acting by Cagney and the fine supporting cast, superb direction, and unflagging pace, "Picture Snatcher" is outstanding among the many virile, red blooded pictures which have made Warner Bros. the recognised producers of the most exciting pictures of the current season. In prize ring parlance, Cagney and "Picture Snatcher" is a knockout and we don't mean mayhem. There isn't a dull moment throughout the entire picture. It is one of these ideal Cagney screen stories that has punch in every foot of film, direction that keeps the pace from lagging, and a choice cast of supporting players that was certainly up to snuff in keeping up with the fast moving work of Cagney, and that is saying something in the way of action. Alice White turns in an exceptionally fine performance as the tabloid's sex sister reporter, with amusing designs on our hero, although she is the girl friend of the City Editor. The surprise of the picture is the performance of Patricia Ellis, who plays the feminine lead, as the sweetheart of Cagney. This young actress, who made her debut in pictures within the last few months, displays such remarkable ability in such fast company as Cagney, that we can expect great things from her in the near future. Other important roles were excellently portrayed were played by Ralph Bellamy, Ralf Harlowe, Robert Emmett O'Connor, Robert Barrat, George Pat Collins, Arthur Vinton and Tom Wilson.

"Here Comes Cookie" A glimpse into the Paramount vint during the filming of "Here Comes Cookie" with George Burns and Gracie Allen, which closes at the Queen's Theatre to-day, would convince anyone that the strangest conglomeration of humans and animals in Hollywood's history was gathered (Continued on Page 11.)

The bombing of Dessale at a time when the Emperor of Abyssinia had gone there from Addis Ababa and had made the town his headquarters, caused much damage to the Red Cross hospital, and was followed by energetic protests by the Emperor and the hospital doctors to the League.

there. Only a Gracie Allen could imagine a situation requiring the simultaneous presence of tumbler, acrobats, jugglers, trick bicycle riders, trained seals, monkeys, birds and dogs. Norman MacLeod, who might be expected to understand in view of the fact he used to direct the Max Brothers, shook his head in bewilderment as he watched the strange company. "Nobody told me that it was going to be like this," he sighed. "I think that before starting to direct this affair I had better go out to lunch. In fact, that might be a good title for the show—'Gracie Allen or Out to Lunch.' Good Lord, now she's got me doing it." Gracie insists that the sixty odd vaudeville performers really have a niche to fill in the picture. The vaudevillians go through their tricks on the possibility that Gracie is right. The leader of the performers is Jack Powell, who is very adept with drumsticks. He taps them here and there, beating out staccato rhythms on brick-a-brac, tables, chairs, floors, walls and vases. In addition to Powell, there are a dozen or so tumbler, a card for fortune-teller, a performing bear and seal, jugglers who juggle plates and oranges, while parrots were squawking, monkeys were chattering, canaries were singing and Flanagan's Dogs were yelping to their hearts content. "I thought it might be fun," Gracie said. "You see we used to spend a lot of time on crossword puzzles and jigsaw puzzles and I think we ought to have a new kind of puzzle. I'm going to let George and Norman puzzle it out. If they give up I'll tell them, but not right now."

"The Gay Deception." The effervescent charm, intriguing good looks and remarkable comedy talents of Francis Lederer are the current attraction at the King's Theatre, where the romantic Czech star is heading the cast of Fox Film's "The Gay Deception." In this light-hearted, inspired comedy, which sweeps you along in its gaily comic sequences, Lederer has recaptured for the screen that intangible something which created his sensational success when he first made his appearance on the Broadway stage. Mounted and dressed with the lavish beauty and colour of a Jesse L. Lasky production, "The Gay Deception" whisks its principals, Lederer and

CANTON-HANOI

AIR SERVICE STARTS TO-DAY

Canton, Feb. 13. In connection with the inauguration of the Canton-Hanoi Airmail Service, which will take place to-morrow, the Canton Post Office has issued the following notification: "The public is hereby notified that a direct weekly airmail service from Canton to Hanoi, via Kwangchowwan, and vice versa, will be established from February 14, 1936.

"Linking at Hanoi with the Hanoi-Marseilles airmail service, the Canton-Hanoi line will serve as an intermediary between the Chinese and the French Airmail Services and will thus enable the air correspondence originating in any place in China to reach its destination in South Asia, Europe and beyond within a comparatively short time. The first aeroplane of this new line will fly from Canton to Hanoi on February 14, 1936. From that date, aeroplanes will leave Canton every Friday. Air correspondence intended for conveyance by the Canton-Hanoi Airmail line must be placed in a container, on the address side of the envelope with the annotation 'via Hanoi' below the usual blue label 'Par Avion'."—Reuter.

China To France

Shanghai, Feb. 13. Inaugurating the weekly Sino-French mail service, a C.N.A.C. airliner hopped off at 6.30 a.m. this morning for Hanoi, where the mail will be transferred to an Air France machine and will be delivered in Paris on February 24.

A passenger service over the same route will be inaugurated shortly.—Reuter.

Reaches Canton

Canton, Feb. 13. The C.N.A.C. plane arrived here from Shanghai this afternoon and is leaving for Hanoi to-morrow morning.—Reuter.

Perfect Flight

Canton, Feb. 13. Mr. Sellers, who is piloting the C.N.A.C. plane, stated when he alighted here this afternoon that he had had a perfect flight from Shanghai with beautiful sunshine all the way. He said the machine would take off at 6.30 a.m. to-morrow for Hanoi. This would be the first flight to have been made from Canton to Hanoi, and it was expected they would return there at 11 a.m., and would return to Canton the following day (Saturday).

The plane is carrying mail which was picked up here but no passengers.—Reuter.

COMMUNIST MARCH

BANDITS SWING FROM KWEICHOW TO YUNNAN

Canton, Feb. 13. After their unsuccessful attempt to enter Kweichow, the Communists are now trying to cross Yunnan, the province next to Kweichow. The Yunnanese troops had the advantage in the fighting near Pichih in Yunnan in which about 2,000 bandits were killed, while the Government's loss was only about 100, with 200 wounded.

The Yunnan Provincial Chairman, General Lung Yun, has advised foreign residents to leave Yunnanfu, the capital, before to-morrow. Residents are also advised to evacuate Sunwei, Iling, and Wingshing. The Government has provided $50,000 for the removal of refugees from the endangered zone.

The Yunnanfu air force has been reinforced by the arrival of eight Nanking aeroplanes from Kweichow. Meanwhile two more Szechuen divisions have arrived on the Kweichow-Yunnan border to fight the Reds.

Captive Priest

Peiping, Feb. 13. A report from Mukden states that Father Joseph Burns of Toledo, Ohio, and his captors have been located at a point 15 miles to the east of Tung-hua by Japanese soldiers who are endeavouring to encircle them. The operation is extremely difficult on account of the mountainous nature of the country.—Reuter.

Father Burns was captured some months ago near Tung-hua.

THE CHEERO CLUB

PETE AND HIS MARAUDERS ENTERTAIN

The concert party of H.M.S. Medway entertained at the Cheero Club on Wednesday evening before a house filled to capacity, and the most enjoyable programme that was presented received the full measure of its reward in the enthusiasm shown by the audience.

At the opening the Medway Mouth Organ band provided a number of harmonica selections. Then we were introduced to "Charlie" by Mr. Gattin, an undoubtedly talented vocalist, in an item called "Two in One." Mr. Morgan and company in "Shades of Old China" almost brought the house down with their representation of a Chinese Opera in the old days, and this was followed by Mr. Foster with a trumpet solo. In the second part of the programme, Messrs. Foster and Fisher rendered "Ivory Blues" after which Mr. Gattin re-appeared with "Charlie."

The cast in "A Family Affair" portrayed Mr. Foster endeavouring to straighten out a very complicated collection of uncles, in addition to which he had great difficulty in keeping "Albert"—a very naughty "Boy," on stage.

Messrs. Jones, Homath and Spencer next came on with "George with Guitar," and finally the party rendered "Good night" with the aid of the mouth organ band, and another very enjoyable evening came to a close. Contributed.

EQUAL TO "ACT OF WAR"

SERIOUS VIEW OF CLASH

Changchun, Feb. 13. The alleged bombing of Olohotka in Manchukuo by two Outer Mongol planes yesterday is described by the Foreign Office as tantamount to an act of war without formal declaration. It is said that Manchukuo is taking a very serious view of the incident and would take most suitable and effective counter measures.—Reuter.

Japanese Airmen Warned

Shanghai, Feb. 13. Japanese reports from Tientsin state that the Japanese Air Force detachment has been ordered to stand by as a result of the clash at Olohotka.—Reuter.

Peiping Conference

Peiping, Feb. 13. Mr. Chen Chung-fu, a member of the Foreign Affairs Political Council, has held further meetings with Major-General Dohara. The discussion was upon the settlement of outstanding Hanoi and Changhai problems.

It is officially stated that General Dohara is about to present the Japanese terms in writing to the Political Council and definite result is expected.

An important meeting of all members of the Hanoi-Changhai Political Council has been convened for to-morrow.

A Tungchow message says that the Kwangtung Army has opened a special service department in Tungchow. This step is interpreted to mean that the Kwangtung army wishes to maintain close connection between the autonomous regime at Tungchow under Yin Yu-keng and Manchukuo.

Negotiations Held Up

Peiping, Feb. 13. Sino-Japanese negotiations for the settlement of the various Hanoi and Changhai issues are at a standstill. Mr. Chen Chung-fu, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Political Council, and Mr. Chen Ching-sheng, Managing-Director of the Peiping-Liaoning Railway, are still carrying on discussions with the Japanese authorities at Tientsin, but the conversations are understood to be merely informal exchanges of opinions.

The recent arrival here of Mr. Hsiao Chen-ying, Mayor of Tientsin, has given rise to the current rumours that future Sino-Japanese negotiations may be conducted here instead of at Tientsin.—Union News.

Sung Cheh-yuan Hard Pressed

Peiping, Feb. 13. It is reported from Chinese official circles that the Japanese continue to insist on further extension of the independent organisation in North China, and are prepared to take this as a basis for negotiation. Other conditions will also be attached.

General Sung Cheh-yuan, Chairman of the Hanoi-Changhai Council, has been put into a difficult position by the Japanese demands. It is reported that General Sung has been advised by certain members of the Hanoi-Changhai Political Council to suspend negotiations in order to avoid a complete rupture.

Meanwhile General Sung is holding a meeting of all members of the Council to-night, to discuss the results of the negotiations of the past two days, and to decide what steps should now be taken.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

Watching Yin Yu-keng

Peiping, Feb. 13. A Tungchow despatch which reached here to-day states that a Japanese Military Office was established there a few days ago. This office is supposed to be maintained as a Japanese liaison office, but in fact it is responsible for watching the Tungchow Administration under Yin Yu-keng.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

Kalgan Agitated

Peiping, Feb. 13. Latest information from Kalgan reports that the situation there is normal, although wild rumours are still circulating.

According to local Japanese sources the Japanese Government is planning to increase the present Japanese Military Forces in North China to double or even to triple present strength. It is also understood that a comprehensive scheme for expanding the Japanese Forces in North China has been drawn up by the Kwangtung Army Authorities, and the scheme is estimated to cost $3,000,000 year.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

Twelve Arrests

Singapore, Feb. 13. The police attribute anti-Japanese street rioting which has broken out here to ill-feeling as a result of Japanese and Soviet border incidents. Twelve persons were arrested with anti-Japanese banners and 100 pamphlets were seized.—United Press.

ALLEGED BURGLARY

MAN COMMITTED TO THE CRIMINAL SESSIONS

Ip Kwong, unemployed, was yesterday afternoon committed to stand his trial at the Criminal Sessions, before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy, on two charges of returning from banishment and burglary.

Defendant is a life banishee, having been banished in September 1923. He was alleged to have broken into and entered No. 95 Hennessy Road, ground floor, on February 4, and stolen two overcoats, property of a Japanese merchant, M. Mitani.

A Chinese detective, Kwok Kam, deposed to the arrest of defendant at No. 45 Tai Yuen Street, first floor, by an informer who pointed out defendant as the man who had given him an overcoat to pawn.

After conversation with defendant, the detective took him to the Wanchai Police Station. Enquiries were then made, and defendant took the police to the Fook Hing, where another case was found, and also to No. 95 Hennessy Road, complainant's address. The complainant identified the coats as his property, and stated that about 6 a.m. on February 4 he discovered thieves had entered the ground floor and stolen the coats. The back door of the kitchen and windows were found open in the morning, although they had been closed the previous night by an amah.

After hearing evidence, Mr. Schofield committed defendant to the Criminal Sessions.

Broke Into Kitchens

On the second charge, Inspector Carey stated that a Chinese detective was taken to No. 45 Tai Yuen Street, first floor, by an informer who pointed out defendant as the man who had given him an overcoat to pawn.

After conversation with defendant, the detective took him to the Wanchai Police Station. Enquiries were then made, and defendant took the police to the Fook Hing, where another case was found, and also to No. 95 Hennessy Road, complainant's address. The complainant identified the coats as his property, and stated that about 6 a.m. on February 4 he discovered thieves had entered the ground floor and stolen the coats. The back door of the kitchen and windows were found open in the morning, although they had been closed the previous night by an amah.

After hearing evidence, Mr. Schofield committed defendant to the Criminal Sessions.

BIRTH CONTROL

FAMOUS AUTHORITY COMING

Mrs. J. Noah H. Slee, better known as Margaret Sanger, President of the British Control International Information Centres, arrives here on the colony on February 20 by the P. and O. liner Corfu.

She will only stay one day and then continue on the course of a world tour.

In connection with the visit, twenty-six prominent residents of the Colony, who are interested in the movement, have formed a reception committee and have arranged a reception, lecture, and dinner for this prominent guest.

An informal reception will be held at 4.30 p.m. on Thursday, February 20, at the Hongkong Hotel. Guests wishing to have tea will please make their own arrangements with the Hotel.

At 5.30 p.m., Mrs. Sanger will give a lecture at the Hongkong Hotel Roof Garden, and at 8.30 p.m. a dinner in her honour will be held at the Roof Garden, evening dress optional.

This is Mrs. Sanger's second visit to the Far East. She held many meetings in Japan and China in 1922, and founded birth control leagues in both countries.

She organised the first World Population Conference held at Geneva in 1927, and is now Chairman of the National Committee for the Federal Legislation on Birth Control.

Mr. and Mrs. How Martyns, leaders of the Birth Control movement in England, who have been accompanying Mrs. Sanger, will arrive here by the Santhia next Tuesday. They will await Mrs. Sanger here and rejoin her in the next stage of her journeyings.

HONGKONG AQUARISTS

TALK ON FISH FOODS AND DISEASES

A gathering of members of the Hongkong Aquarium Society, at the Biological Department of the University, on Wednesday night, listened to an informative talk by Mr. B. E. Sugars on tropical aquarium fishes, dealing with the proper food to give them, their enemies, and the treatment of these small fishes in case of sickness. Many helpful hints were noted by the audience, so the composition of fresh and dried foods, quantity to give one's fish, and times of feeding; the menace of "water tigers," dragon-fly larvae and other harmful creatures unwittingly introduced into tanks; and the several ways a sick fish may be cured.

Mr. Sugars had arranged an exhibit to illustrate his talk, and the rows of bottles and jars with specimens helped considerably to make everyone acquainted with the topics discussed.

At the next meeting it is hoped to have a talk on where to look locally for water weeds and small fishes suitable for the home aquarium.

HITLER AND JEWS

COMPLETE EXPULSION PLANNED?

London, Feb. 13. The Daily Herald declares, but it is not confirmed in any other quarter, that the Nazi Chieftains have prepared for Herr Hitler's signature a secret decree expelling all Jews from Germany as rapidly as possible and confiscating their property.

It is said that Herr Hitler is hesitating to sign owing to the opposition of the Minister of Economics, Herr Schacht, and also those who are anxious to see the completion of the Winter Olympics before this move is made.—United Press.

CHINESE HOSPITALS

ELECTION OF THE NEW BOARD OF DIRECTORS

At a joint meeting held yesterday morning in the main hall of the Tung Wah Hospital, the following were formally elected Directors of the Tung Wah, Kwong Wah and Tung Wah Eastern Hospitals for the ensuing year.—Mr. L. Lo Wing-kit (Chairman), Messrs. Ngan Kang-hoi, Chan Cheuk-man, Kan Shu-cho, Lau King-ling, Cheung Lan-chow, S. Ng, Quinn, Chan Tsing-man, Mok Yu-kei, Chan Chun-lak, Leung Pak-chung and Dr. Shi Man-wai. Mr. Peter Sin was chairman for the occasion and made a speech to welcome the incoming directors, and also expressed thanks on behalf of his colleagues to the Directors for their public-spirited manner in coming forward to serve this gigantic charitable institution.

Mr. Sin remarked that the election of Dr. Shi Man-wai constituted a record; Dr. Shi being the first doctor to have been elected to serve as a Director in the history of these hospitals. This year the number of Directors exceeded last year's by one, and the hospitals could not expect to find a more able and energetic body, he said, than that of the new Directors.

JAPANESE ENTER MONGOLIA

TROOPS CROSS FRONTIER TANKS AND PLANES IN SUPPORT

TSITSIHAR ORDERED TO "STAND BY"

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, Feb. 14, 1 p.m.)

Moscow, Feb. 14.
The Tass Agency reports to-day that Japanese troops crossed the Outer Mongolian frontier yesterday.

It is stated by this semi-official authority that 500 Japanese and Manchukuoan troops, travelling in twenty army lorries, crossed the border and penetrated some distance into Outer Mongolian territory.

Two light tanks crossed the line at the same time and have moved with the troops.

Two army planes are accompanying this expedition.

The Japanese troops crossed the frontier near Bulundusun. —United Press.

TROOPS "STAND-BY"

Shanghai, Feb. 14.
A Japanese report from Taitshih states that the Japanese detachment there has been ordered to stand by as a result of the clash at Olhotka.

Reports from Changchun last night stated that Olhotka, a Manchukuo town, had been bombed by two planes from Outer Mongolia and the Foreign Office considered it as tantamount to an act of war. A most serious view is taken of the affair and counter-measures are being considered. —Reuter.

ASKS FOR INQUIRY

Tokyo, Feb. 14.
Mr. Koki Hirota, the Japanese Foreign Minister, has instructed the Japanese Ambassador at Moscow to propose a joint Russo-Japanese Commission to investigate the circumstances of the recent mutiny of a company of Manchukuoan troops, who entered Russian territory after killing their officers.

It was alleged at the time that Soviet agents had stirred the men to revolt. —United Press.

Copenhagen, Feb. 13.
Sixty arrests have been made following charges of espionage, according to reports here from the German newspaper, Flensburger.

The authorities believe the principal prisoner is a waiter named Stockmann, the alleged leader of a gang of spies.

This man served in the German Army during the war, was taken prisoner by the French and worked at the German Naval Headquarters at Kiel after the war. Later he has been a waiter at Flensburg.

It is also reported that a lieutenant in the German Navy and eight others have also been arrested at Kiel on information given by Stockmann. —Reuter Special.

The Ministry of Propaganda to-day stated that nothing was known about any arrests of men charged with espionage at Flensburg.

The arrests are unconfirmed by official quarters at Flensburg. —Reuter Special.

CARRIES SILVER TO 'FRISCO

ROMANTIC VOYAGE OF LINER

HUGE POLICE GUARD

A strange divergence in Police methods is witnessed at various ports by the travellers on the Dollar liner President Hoover which arrived here to-day from America.

On the last trip east the liner took from Shanghai some 11 million dollars worth of silver and three million dollars worth of gold. When the precious metal was loaded at Shanghai there was a crowd of coolies, a few disinterested onlookers and two or three watchmen who supervised the carrying aboard of the immense fortune in metal.

The scene was very different at San Francisco when the liner reached her destination. The ship was met on arrival by a full squad of Police, who crowded the dock and lined the way from the ship to the waiting trucks.

The trucks themselves were then escorted to the building where the silver was to be stored.

It is understood by those aboard the liner that a similar amount of silver is to be sent by the ship when she returns to Shanghai later this month on her homeward run.

During her voyage west the President Hoover experienced unpleasant weather from Honolulu onwards. This is the second trip in succession that the liner has encountered fierce storms and particularly rough seas. The speed was cut down, and on arrival here to-day the vessel was one day late.

She sails at 9 p.m. to-day for Manila.

Roosevelt In For Fight

ANNOUNCES HIS CANDIDATURE

Springfield, Feb. 13.
Definitely declaring his candidature for a second term of office, President Franklin D. Roosevelt to-day filed his nomination papers to enter the Illinois Democratic presidential primary election, to be held April 14.

Yesterday, Colonel Frank Knox, the Republican leader of Chicago, filed his papers here. —Reuter.

GIANT PLANE MISSING

THIRTY PERSONS ABOARD

H.M.S. FURIOUS TO RESCUE

Madrid, Feb. 13.
At least thirty persons are feared to have lost their lives as a result of the crash of a giant airliner in the Atlantic.

A despatch from Madeira states that a big plane, with thirty passengers aboard, has crashed into the sea off Tenerife, the Canary Islands.

The British aircraft carrier Furious has been ordered to search for the lost machine and she will utilise her planes in an effort to locate the wreck.

Details of the mishap are not yet at hand. —Reuter.

MYSTERY REMAINS

London, Feb. 14.
Mystery surrounds the reported crash of an airliner off Tenerife.

A message from Ponta del Gada, in the Azores, says the Luftwansa Samum, which was carrying out a trial flight across a section of the proposed trans-Atlantic route to the Azores, landed here safely yesterday noon. —Reuter.

NO NEWS OBTAINABLE

Lisbon, Feb. 14.
Apart from the Luftwansa plane, Samum, no news of any other aircraft is obtainable either from the Azores or Madeira. —Reuter.

NOT GERMAN PLANE

Lisbon, Feb. 14.
The airliner reported lost off Tenerife is definitely not a German plane, as was originally feared.

The belief prevails that the report concerns a French flying boat, possibly the Ville de Buenos Aires, which disappeared Wednesday while flying from Natal, Brazil, to Dakar, in Senegal, with a crew of six. —Reuter.

Tenerife is the largest of the Canary Islands, having an area of 785 square miles. It is traversed by volcanic mountains, of which Tenerife Peak is the highest. It is a well-known tourist and health resort.

CHINESE CITY AFLAME

Conflagration In Tientsin

Tientsin, Feb. 14.
A conflagration this morning in the Chinese City razed to the ground temporary tenements for the poor, in which five hundred houses were involved.

It is estimated that at least a hundred people were killed and injured. —Reuter.

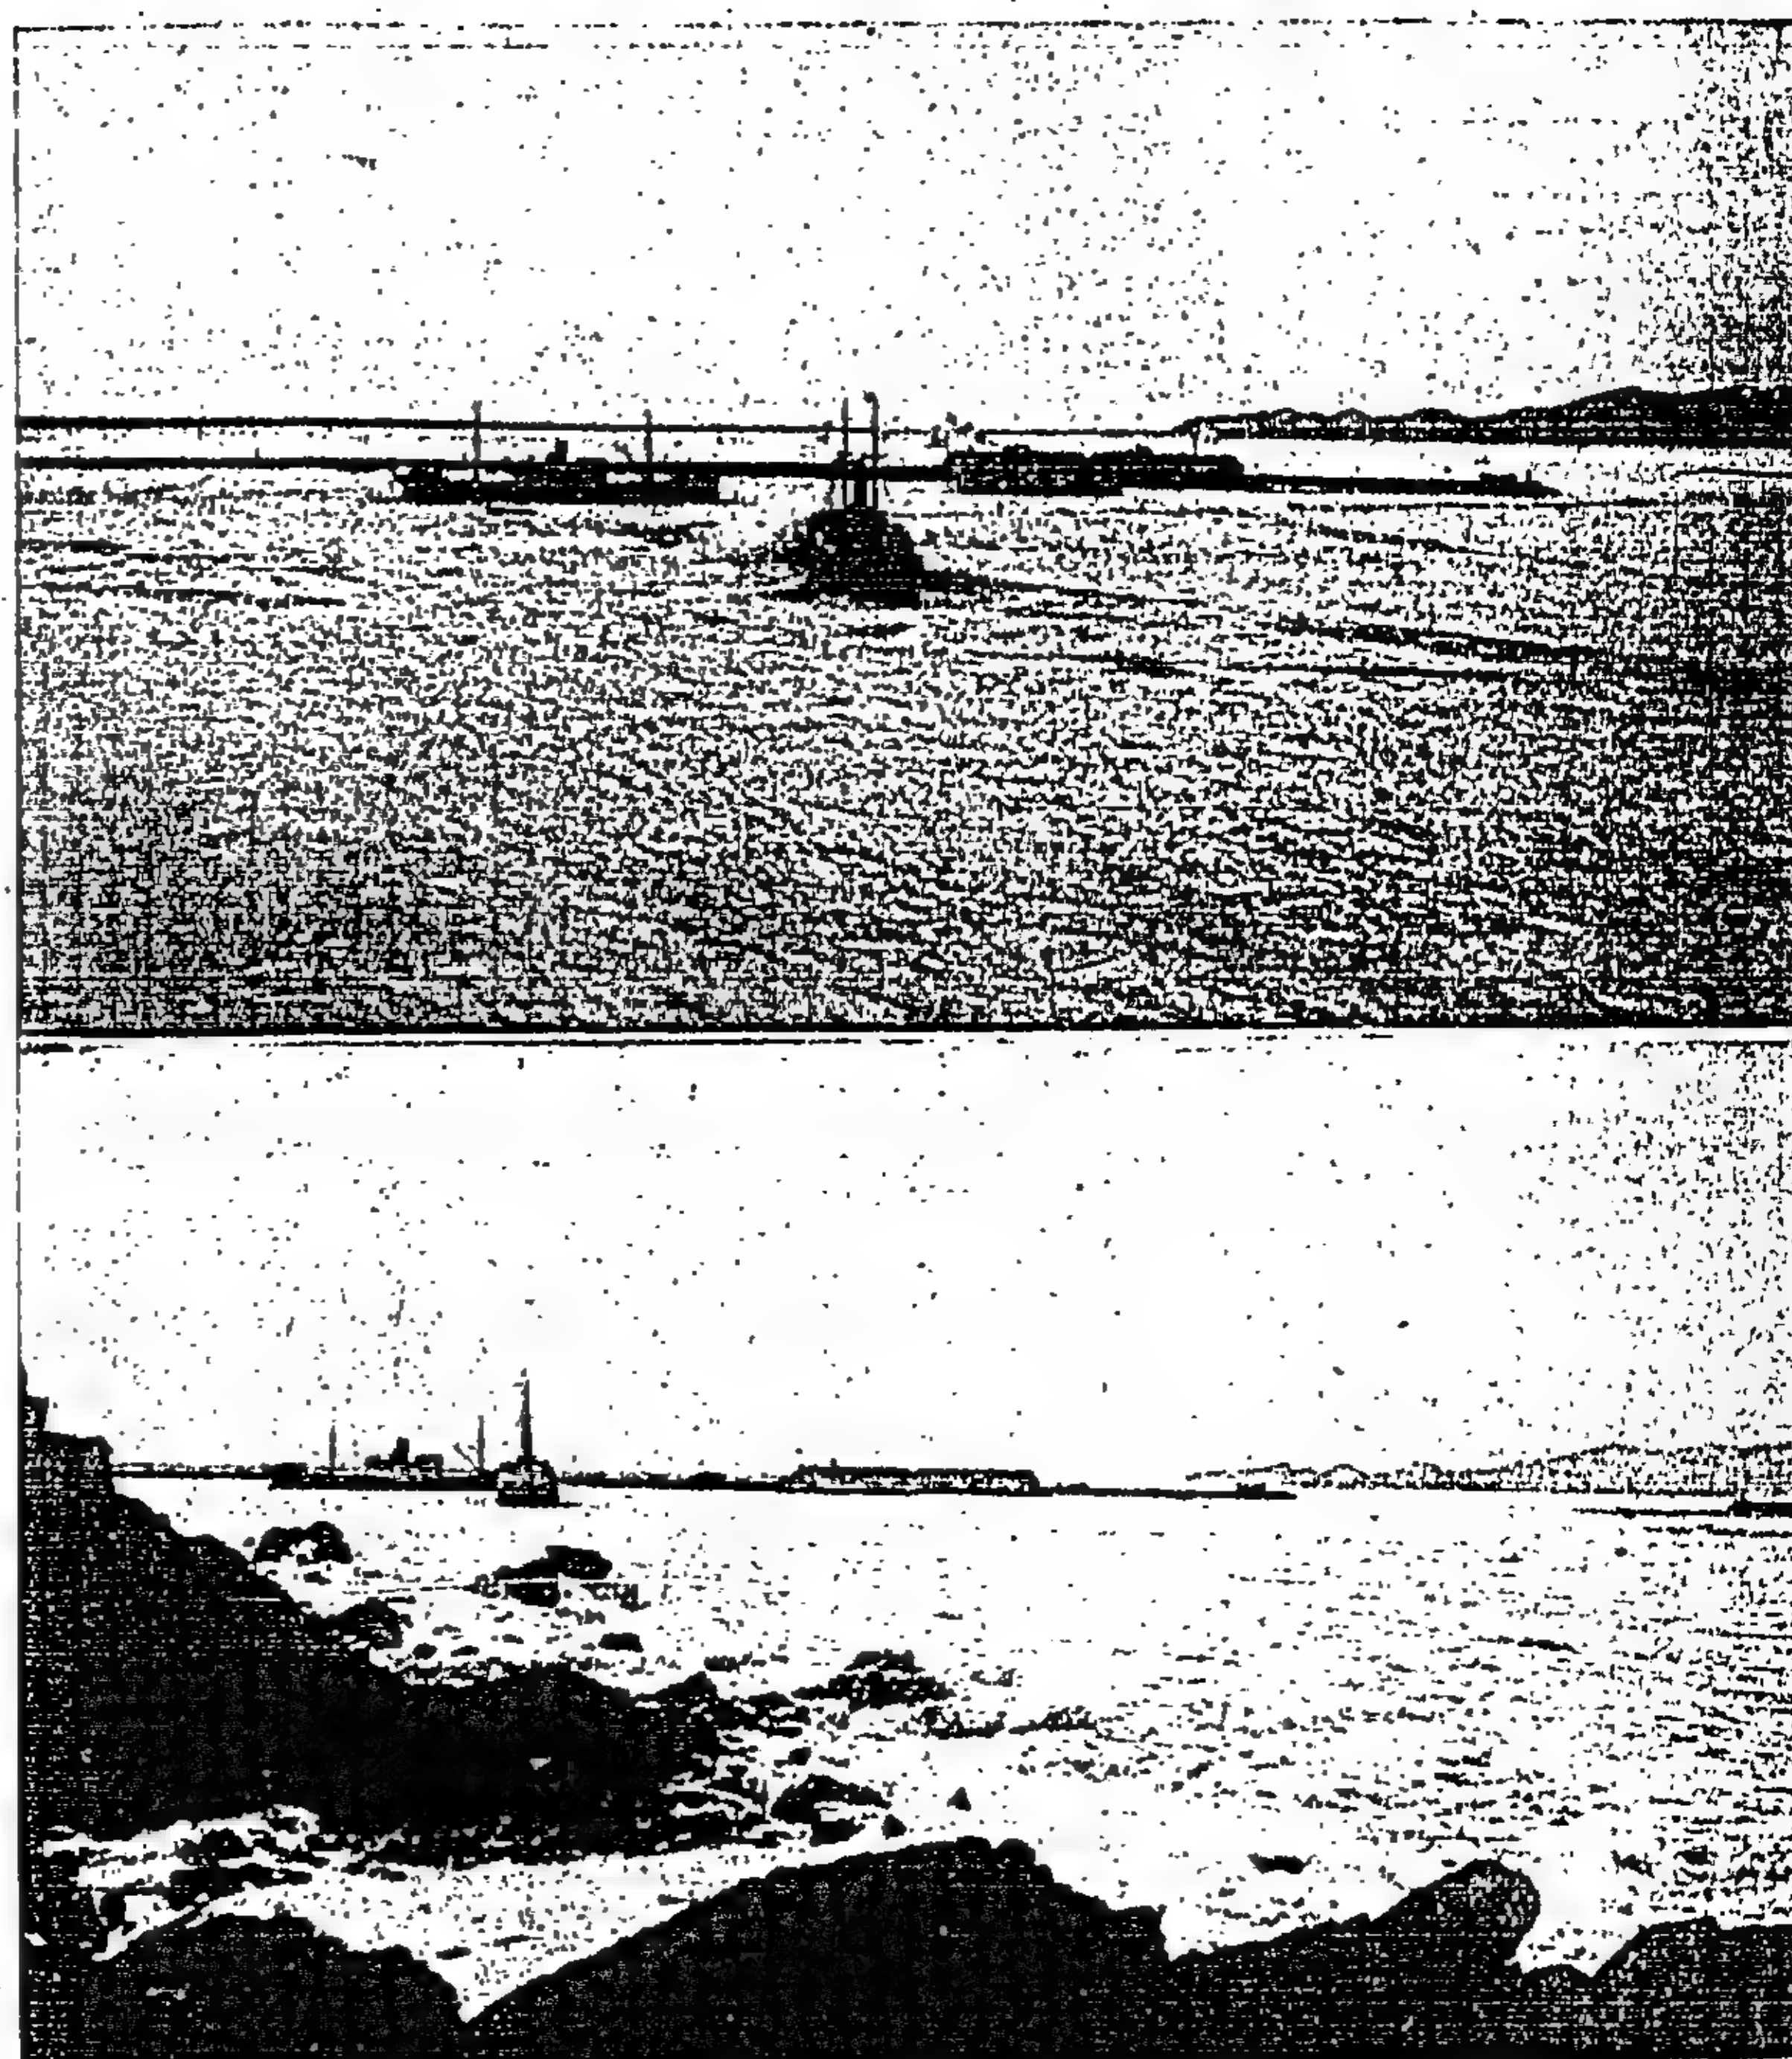

HAUPTMANN'S REPRIEVE EXPIRES SATURDAY

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

Trenton, Feb. 13.
Bruno Hauptmann, sentenced to die for the murder of the baby son of Colonel and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh, said to-day that he had already told the whole truth and that he had no intention of changing his story.

It is therefore likely that Mr. Samuel Leibowitz, the famous criminal lawyer who has offered to assist Hauptmann if he tells the truth about the kidnapping and murder, will get a cool reception from the condemned man, who will meet the lawyer in the death house of the penitentiary here. It is now thought improbable that Mr. Leibowitz will enter the case. Nevertheless, Mr. Leibowitz intends to see Hauptmann to-day, or to-morrow.

Hauptmann's reprieve expires Saturday. He will probably be re-sentenced Monday with the date of execution set for four or eight weeks from the day of sentence. —United Press.

More than usually severe winter weather has been experienced during the past few weeks at Chefoo, the entrance to the harbour being completely frozen over. Pictures show steamers battling their way through the ice.

UNCERTAIN PEPPER MARKET

EXPERT EVIDENCE AT OLD BAILEY

CITY MEN ON TRIAL

London, Feb. 13.
The fact that black pepper could be converted into white pepper played an important part in the affairs of Messrs. James and Shakespeare, the company which crashed in the pepper market crisis of last year and whose leading partners are on trial for the issue of an allegedly deceptive prospectus. This was the testimony of an expert witness at the resumed hearing of the case against Garabed Bishirian, John Howson and Louis Hardy at the Old Bailey to-day.

Mr. Duncan McKellar, the accountant who examined the books and documents in the case, testified that he was unable to obtain definite information regarding the existence of a pepper pool but he had discovered references to a mysterious gentleman. (Continued on Page 4.)

ROYALIST LEAGUES DISSOLVED

AFTER SOCIALIST LEADER BEATEN

INDIGNATION IN PARIS

(Special To "Telegraph")
(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, February 13, 8.15 a.m.)

Paris, Feb. 13.
The attack upon M. Leon Blum, the Socialist leader, made yesterday by Royalists, has caused serious repercussions, and the incident is by no means closed. It is feared that reprisals and possibly a serious clash of factions may develop.

Meanwhile, two powerful Royalist organisations have been dissolved by decree, though this does not mean that they will disintegrate. They will probably carry on their work, "under cover."

Strong indignation was manifested in the Chamber of Deputies following the attack on M. Blum. The President and leaders of all parties joined in condemnation of the attacks.

The Socialist spokesman said M. Blum had been saved by workmen who first rushed to his rescue when he was out of his automobile. Police eventually reached the centre of the milling crowd, and rushed M. Blum to hospital. He was bleeding profusely from a severed artery.

LEAGUES DISSOLVED

As a result of this assault, the Royalist Leagues, Action Francaise and the National Federation of Students of Action Francaise, were dissolved by decree this evening. The decree was signed by President Lebrun under the law passed on January 10 to deal with dangerous political organisations.

The dissolution of the two Leagues accords with the demand of the Socialist group in the Chamber of Deputies, upon whose support the

Sanctions Future Uncertain

LONDON WILL NOT COMMENT

PROTEST TO ROME

London, Feb. 13.
Official British circles refuse to comment upon the oil sanctions committee's report, which points out amongst other things the difficulty of an effective embargo on this commodity without the co-operation of the United States.

It is stated in London that the Government cannot anticipate the deliberations of the Committee of Eighteen. This body, which is responsible to the League for action in respect of sanctions, might conceivably decide to pursue an oil embargo scheme in spite of the lesser committee's conclusion and the changed for action in the United States with respect to neutrality. —Reuter.

BRITISH PROTEST

Rome, Feb. 13.
A protest has been lodged by the British Ambassador at Rome with the Italian Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, with regard to the Italian reports that Colonel Holt, the British military attaché in Ethiopia, was acting as the chief military adviser of Emperor Haile Selassie.

The British Ambassador pointed out that there was not the slightest ground for such an allegation, which he characterised as absurd. —Reuter.

AIR ESTIMATES

Rome, Feb. 13.
The Budget for 1936-37 provides one and a half million sterling more for Air Force expansion.

This sum is only for the permanent Air Force of Italy, and not for the Air Force serving at the front. —Reuter's Bulletin Service.

Another protest has been lodged with the League of Nations in respect of the recent Italian bombing of the town of Dessale, when only Red Cross units were on the field subjected to a particularly heavy attack. —United Press.

WOMEN IN EMPEROR'S NEW ARMY

MARCH TO MEET ITALIANS

THREAT TO ERITREA

(Special To "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, February 13, 8.15 a.m.)

Addis Ababa, Feb. 13.

A new army is marching to meet the Italian troops in the Tembien region of Ethiopia. And at least ten per cent. of these new troops, steadily concentrating at the front in well-equipped columns, are women. They dress the same as the men, and are fine physical specimens, but there is no disguising their sex.

This is the story told by a reliable eye-witness who has just come back from the northern front, where severe fighting has been in progress for many days and where the Ethiopians claim to have inflicted heavy casualties, unofficially estimated at 20,000 dead, upon the Italian army.

All the Ethiopian troops are cheerful and well supplied with food, but ammunition is scarce. None of the fighting men has more than 150 rounds of ammunition.

It is the opinion of well-informed observers that the stream of reinforcements proceeding to the Tembien area indicates that Ras Kassa and Ras Seyoum, whose forces are co-operating in that direction, contemplate a further offensive. They have recently been joined by a strong body of men under Ras Imba.

An offensive through the Tembien, if it meets with success, would carry the Ethiopians to the Eritrean frontier. They could then strike at Italian territory.

The morale of the Ethiopian army is unshaken by the daily air raids from the Italian side. —Reuter Special.

STORM'S TOLL IN EUROPE

166 DEATHS IN WILD BLOW

(Special To "Telegraph")

London, Feb. 14.
At least 166 persons are dead in Great Britain and on the Continent as a result of the fierce gales which continued into the fourth day to-day.

There have been twenty-five deaths in Greece, several of them slain when attacked by ravenous wolf packs. Others have been suffocated when their homes have been destroyed by the terrific weight of the snow drifts. Seventeen additional deaths in Bulgaria, bring the total of lives lost there during the past four days to thirty. —United Press.

SEVEN IMPORTANT PROMISES

(Special To "Telegraph")

Washington, Feb. 13.
The Lincoln Day speeches of Republican leaders outlined the principal points of the party's platform for the coming presidential election conflict.

First, Republicans promise to protect the constitution and to limit the Government's intervention in business.

Secondly, to protect the home market for agriculture, industry and labour.

Thirdly, to abandon the scarcity principle in farm relief.

Fourthly, to defend a sound currency.

Fifthly, to balance the budget through curtailed spending.

Sixthly, to reverse the Government centralisation trend.

Seventhly, to oppose the delegation by Congress of extraordinary powers to the President. —United Press.

Why Do Stars' Marriages Fail?

DIVORCE COURTS DO THRIVING TRADE

Hollywood Industry That Knows No Slump

Divorce mills of the gods of Hollywood didn't grind slowly in 1935. In fact, they ground so fast that filmfod is still trying to pull itself together and fill another couple who can be dubbed "The Happiest Married Pair."

Husbands and wives, like money, are easy come and easy go with Hollywood. Look at the "imposing" list of 1935's broken romances:

JEAN HARLOW divorced her third husband on March 11. He was cruel to her.

MARY PICKFORD uprooted Hollywood's greatest matrimonial schemer when she divorced DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS. When the decree becomes absolute in March this year, Douglas is expected to marry LADY CYNTHIA ASHLEY, in whose divorce he was cited as co-respondent, while Mary's name has been linked with Charles ("Buddy") Rogers.

JOHN WILSON "Tarzan" WEISMULLER and his mate (LUPEZ VELAZQUEZ) fell out, became reconciled, divorced, all in the course of a few months. Lupe alleged that her Tarzan threw the furniture at her.

MARY ASTOR sued her second husband, Dr. Franklin Thorpe on incompatibility grounds, and secured one of Reno's 2,800 divorces.

DOLORES COSTELLO alleged cruelty and habitual intemperance against hubby JOHN BARRYMORE, receiving custody of their two children. Barrymore's name was linked with that of Elaine Jacobs, with whom he went on a yachting cruise. Now John doesn't speak to Elaine any more.

Beautiful ELISSA LANDI was the next to fall by the divorce wayside, securing a divorce from London barrister-hubby John Cecil Lawrence, who refuses to recognise the Los Angeles decree as binding on a British subject.

"Extreme cruelty" secured Colleen Moore a Los Angeles divorce from Albert Scott, a New York broker.

VIRGINIA BRUCE wound up another "perfect romance" when she divorced hubby JOHN GILBERT.

Frozen faced BUSTER KEATON didn't smile even when he gained his freedom from Mrs. Buster. Why? Cause Buster was the defendant, and there was also a $200,000 allegation of affectionate charge against his friend Mrs. L. C. Sewell.

LILA LEE, a film star known to fans of a decade ago more than to the younger generation, went to Carson City for her divorce from Jack R. Peche, another New York broker. You'll notice that New York brokers have been pretty prominent so far. Lila's case was heard behind closed doors.

JOAN BLONDELL successfully alleged that thrice-previously married husband GEORGE BARNES had not spoken to her for hours at a time, drove a motor car while intoxicated and ignored her guests at their home when she asked the Divorce court in Los Angeles to end yet another of Hollywood's "perfect romances."

MARIA JERITZA, the operatic film star, married film producer Willard Sheehan after she had secured divorce from Baron von Popper. There was a spot of bother when Maria and her husband visited Austria in September, Austrian Government ordering her to leave country before they prosecuted for alleged bigamy, Arkansas divorcees being unrecognisable in Austria.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT and NORMAN FOSTER completed the drama of real life tangles when they divorced in November, Claudette taking the initiative. FOSTER immediately announced intention of marrying Sally Blane, sister of Loretta Young.

They do say that Hollywood parents teach their children arithmetic by getting them to add up the number of daddies they've had.

If Japan Went To War

"The principal contribution the United States and Great Britain can make to the solution of the Far Eastern question lies largely along economic lines."

Sir Frederick Whyte, former Political Adviser to the National Government of China, put forward this contention when he spoke on "the situation in the Far East" at the Royal United Service Institution in London last month.

He declared that the root cause of the present trouble in the Far East was the character of China during the Revolution. The Chinese had failed to put their house in order, and the Japanese had taken advantage of the situation.

Japan's hope of Manchuria as an outlet for her population and products did not appear likely to be satisfied.

Was war inevitable? It might be inevitable between Russia and Japan. It was conceivable—though he did not believe it was probable—that there might be war between the United States and Japan, in which event Britain would almost inevitably be involved.

Communications
Britain's major concern, however, would be the preservation of uninterrupted communication with her great Imperial estate, and the Far East was just off the main line.

If Japan gained control of the Philippine Islands, it would bring interference by them with our own lines of communication much nearer.

Britain's contribution to the Far Eastern problem might be made when the Japanese reached a more amenable frame of mind. When the fruits of their Far Eastern campaign came home, they might be persuaded to give their politicians and diplomats another chance. It might then be seen that the real solution of the problem did not lie in Asia at all, but in the markets of the world.

Then, and then only, could the influence of the United States and Britain be brought to bear.

"Through that very narrow opening," Sir Frederick commented, "I see something of the daylight of peace for the Far East in the future. The majority of our fellow-countrymen are pro-Chinese, but in the services the majority are, perhaps, the other way. I think we have reached a point when we ought to be pro ourselves, because we have reached a critical stage in our relations to the Far East."

Emperor Starts Fashion

WILL SOON SHOW HIS INFLUENCE ON WOMEN'S FASHIONS.

Hats and frocks are going all Ethiopian.

Bonnets decorated with an array of slender feathers, as worn by the Emperor's troops, will be all the rage.

Cloaks after the Abyssinian design will be popular for evening wear, and for the afternoon at home, trousers tailored in the best Addis Ababa manner.

The new dresses for the home will also be worn with sandals of Abyssinian design.

Countess Haugwitz-von Reventlow, formerly Barbara Hutton, the American heiress, is expecting a happy event.

"I am perfectly happy and very proud," she said. "I am able to write poetry and live a life of happy poems."

The happy event is expected towards the end of this month, and the countess has cancelled all of her social engagements.

Poetry Hobby
Now she spends most of her time indoors reading the poems of Byron and her favourite Eastern writer, Tagore.

In the quiet room in which she rests is a concealed gramophone controlled by a tiny switch at her bedside. It continually plays Oriental music.

BRITAIN AND EGYPT

DELEGATES TO NEGOTIATE NEW TREATY

Cairo, Feb. 12.
Nahas Pasha, leader of the Wafd has been nominated as president of the delegation that is to negotiate a new Anglo-Egyptian Treaty.

The Royal Decree nominates 19 members to serve on the delegation, and the Premier in submitting names to King Fund stated that Egypt desired a real agreement with Britain, strengthening the bonds of cordial friendship, and placing their relations on a solid basis of co-operation and good understanding.

It stressed the unity and representative character of the delegation. It is understood that Admiral W. W. Fisher, General George Weir and Air Chief Marshal Brook Popham will act as technical advisers to Sir Miles Lampson.—Reuter.

GLAMOUR OF FIRST NIGHTS

EVEN TRAGEDY CANNOT STOP PERFORMANCE

ALL first nights are glamorous; when sensation is added they become memorable.

I recall the premiere of Isidore de Lara's opera "Nall," by the Beecham Opera Company, at Manchester Opera House on a February evening in 1920.

Sir Thomas had promised to conduct the new work, Miss Rosina Buckman was cast for the title-role, and the big theatre was crowded from floor to roof.

Sensation No. 1 was a wire from Sir Thomas saying he could not appear. Then came a greater shock.

When Miss Buckman arrived, smiling and radiant, I saw the stage doorkeeper hand her a cable. It was a message of tragedy. Her mother had died suddenly.

A desperate position developed. Out in front some three thousand people sat waiting. Behind the scenes the prima donna, upon whom everything depended, lay prostrate with grief.

Realising the seriousness of it all, Miss Buckman nerved herself for a supreme effort.

On her first stage entrance the sympathetic murmurings of the audience were hushed to a tense silence? Would she get through?

Faint tremors in her opening number told of the strain—the terrible heart-ache behind the stage smile.

Gradually the tremors ceased and the glorious notes flowed stronger and clearer. It was a grim battle between the artist and cruel circumstance. The artist won.

Right to the end she carried her exacting role. Then the vast audience rose en masse and shouted thunderous approval of Rosina Buckman—heroine!—H.C.L.

SIXTY BARRED PEOPLE

WHO CANNOT VISIT HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT

Nearly sixty people are barred from the House of Commons and the House of Lords.

This was revealed at Bow-street Police Court recently, when Henry Cole, a guide, was summoned for obstruction.

Cole, who said that he wanted to defend his rights as a private individual to enter Westminster Abbey or the House of Commons to see his M.P., summoned four policemen for assault.

An official of the Abbey said that, under a statute of Queen Elizabeth, the Abbey came directly under the King, who had full jurisdiction.

The magistrate upheld the right of the authorities to exclude Cole or any one they liked, but dismissed the obstruction case. Cole gave notice of appeal.

The summonses against two policemen were dismissed with costs, and the case against the other two policemen was adjourned.

AN "EFFICIENT DECKHAND"

MUST BE THREE YEARS AT SEA INSTEAD OF ONE

MR. RUNCIMAN, President of the Board of Trade, will shortly announce in Parliament important new regulations governing safety at sea and the working conditions of seamen.

The Sunday Express is able to reveal that the new regulations will provide:

Shorter hours for seamen.

Changes in the manning regulations.

The definition of what is an "efficient deckhand."

More stringent rules regarding the use of the "rod-and-chain" type of steering gear in ships over a certain tonnage.

Stricter surveys of ships by the classification societies (such as Lloyd's).

Inquiries conducted by Lord Merrivale into losses at sea led the Board of Trade to set up committees which are now investigating the problems.

Their reports will be received by Mr. Runciman in a few days' time.

The Merchant Shipping Advisory Committee met last Friday to discuss its draft report.

It is understood that it was then announced that a decision had been reached regarding the term "efficient deckhand."

This definition has been the subject of many controversies.

At present it is possible for any one who has been to sea for twelve months to be called "an efficient deckhand."

The committee is to advise that the term should be applied only to seamen who have been three years on the deck.

This dramatic photograph of survivors of the British steamer, Silverhaze, wrecked off Luzon was taken from U.S.S. Peary just before the weary seamen were taken aboard.

Ras Gugsu Still Works For Italy

Asmara, Jan. 28.

Reports that Ras Gugsu, the Emperor of Abyssinia's son-in-law, who submitted to the Italians in October, had either been executed or imprisoned because of treachery to the Italians, are emphatically denied by Italian military headquarters.

Ras Gugsu, it is announced, is at present playing the minor role of keeping the natives in the occupied territory moving.

He is always accompanied by his bodyguard and extra precautions have been taken to protect him because of the price the Abyssinians have put on his head.

BROKEN ROMANCE? But Post Office Made No Mistake

At 4 o'clock in the afternoon a week or two ago, a young man hurried into a suburban post office at Melbourne and handed in a wire.

At 4.11 p.m. a telegraph clerk at the general post office scratched his head over it. It was addressed to, "A Lady in Black Waiting Outside So-and-so's (A well-known jeweller's shop), Bourke Street, Melbourne."

The clerk consulted his departmental manager. A telegraph boy was despatched post-haste across the street, which happens to be Bourke Street, and searched systematically among the crowd.

He found the "right Lady in Black" and exactly at 4.13 p.m. handed her the wire. She read it hurriedly. Then with a final glance at the rings in the jeweller's window, she walked dejectedly away.

But the Post Office, says Austral News, had unquestionably done its ingenious smart job.

PRIEST AT A PARIS DUEL

One Man Wounded: Unknown Antagonist

Paris, Jan. 28.

M. JACQUES DOURDAIN, aged 26, who is well known in Parisian Society, was severely wounded in a duel in the Parc des Princes this morning, while a priest stood by in case there were need of absolution.

The Parc des Princes, traditional duelling ground of Paris, contains a football ground, and it was here that the duel took place, the two men standing on the markings of the pitch. The name of M. Dourdain's adversary is being kept secret.

Outside the park a mysterious woman, cloaked in furs, walked up and down. When anyone approached her she covered her face.

Eight men in two parties of four, dressed in black, were seen to enter the park from opposite entrances.

One witness was overheard being addressed as "Colonel."

Two Exchanges

The duel was conducted by the famous duel master, Jean Joseph Renaud.

The arrangement was that there should be two exchanges of shots; but only one of these was fired, for in the first exchange a bullet hit M. Dourdain in the hip.

It was quite impossible to do anything on the spot to extricate the bullet, which was deeply imbedded, and the wounded duellist was rushed off to a nursing home.

DESSYE SEEN AS ETHIOPIAN ARMAGEDDON

Mountain Town Marked For Last Stand If Italians Advance

Dessye, Jan. 25.

The placid town of Dessye has overnight become one of the most important cities of Ethiopia and suddenly found itself acting capital when the Emperor arrived.

Natives think the ultimate defence of Ethiopia will be fought near here. No one remotely dreams the Italians could advance this far but if they do, the last ditch fight will be just north of here.

Dessye is built upon a high mountain surrounded by mountains. In the early warring days a village's safety depended upon its height and the ability of its guardians to see the enemy while afar. No one could approach Dessye unseen, and the few trails leading to it could be blocked so easily as to make conquest well-nigh impossible.

Location Is Strategic

The town seemingly could not be conquered by planes, for even though bombed the wooded mountain offers abundant shelter. It is difficult to see how heavy guns could be brought over the mountains to bear upon it. If taken, infantry must do it, strategists say.

It might be a Quebec again, but it is more probable that its wary guardians wouldn't be caught asleep.

The soldiers somehow have procured tents, and those who have none make them from any cloth, hay, straw, reeds, matting or whatever is available. They are pitched irregularly but the infinite variety of their design and colour gives a picturesque touch to the whole.

The meadows all around Dessye are covered with tents. Men spend their time talking, riding sleek mules, dashing madly on wild horses—horses raised for combat. Women do the work and children spend their time gazing at the wonders of the city and looking at foreigners.

Guards On Alert

At night the plains are alight with the "watchfires of a hundred encircling camps." From Dessye mountain fires can be seen for miles in any direction. Guards are always on duty.

These will pass on, but daily others arrive in one long caravan to take their places. From mountain, plain and desert, all trails lead to Dessye, and here they come, all hoping to see the Emperor before going into battle.

Stories of war's suffering already are seeping through to Dessye. Men, women and children go to war. No age is exempt. There is no commissariat, often there is a struggle for food, and the weak lose out. Old folks and children have been left to starve along the roadside.

Others have been taken sick and are left to die. There are relatives at home who do care and would help but they are far away.

An epidemic of smallpox has broken out in the army. There is a Red Cross, but it isn't functioning in the north. Wounded are left to recover or die as it may be. Some have made the ten-day trip to Dessye in 20 days and entered crazed by pain and almost dead from suffering, their wounds infected.

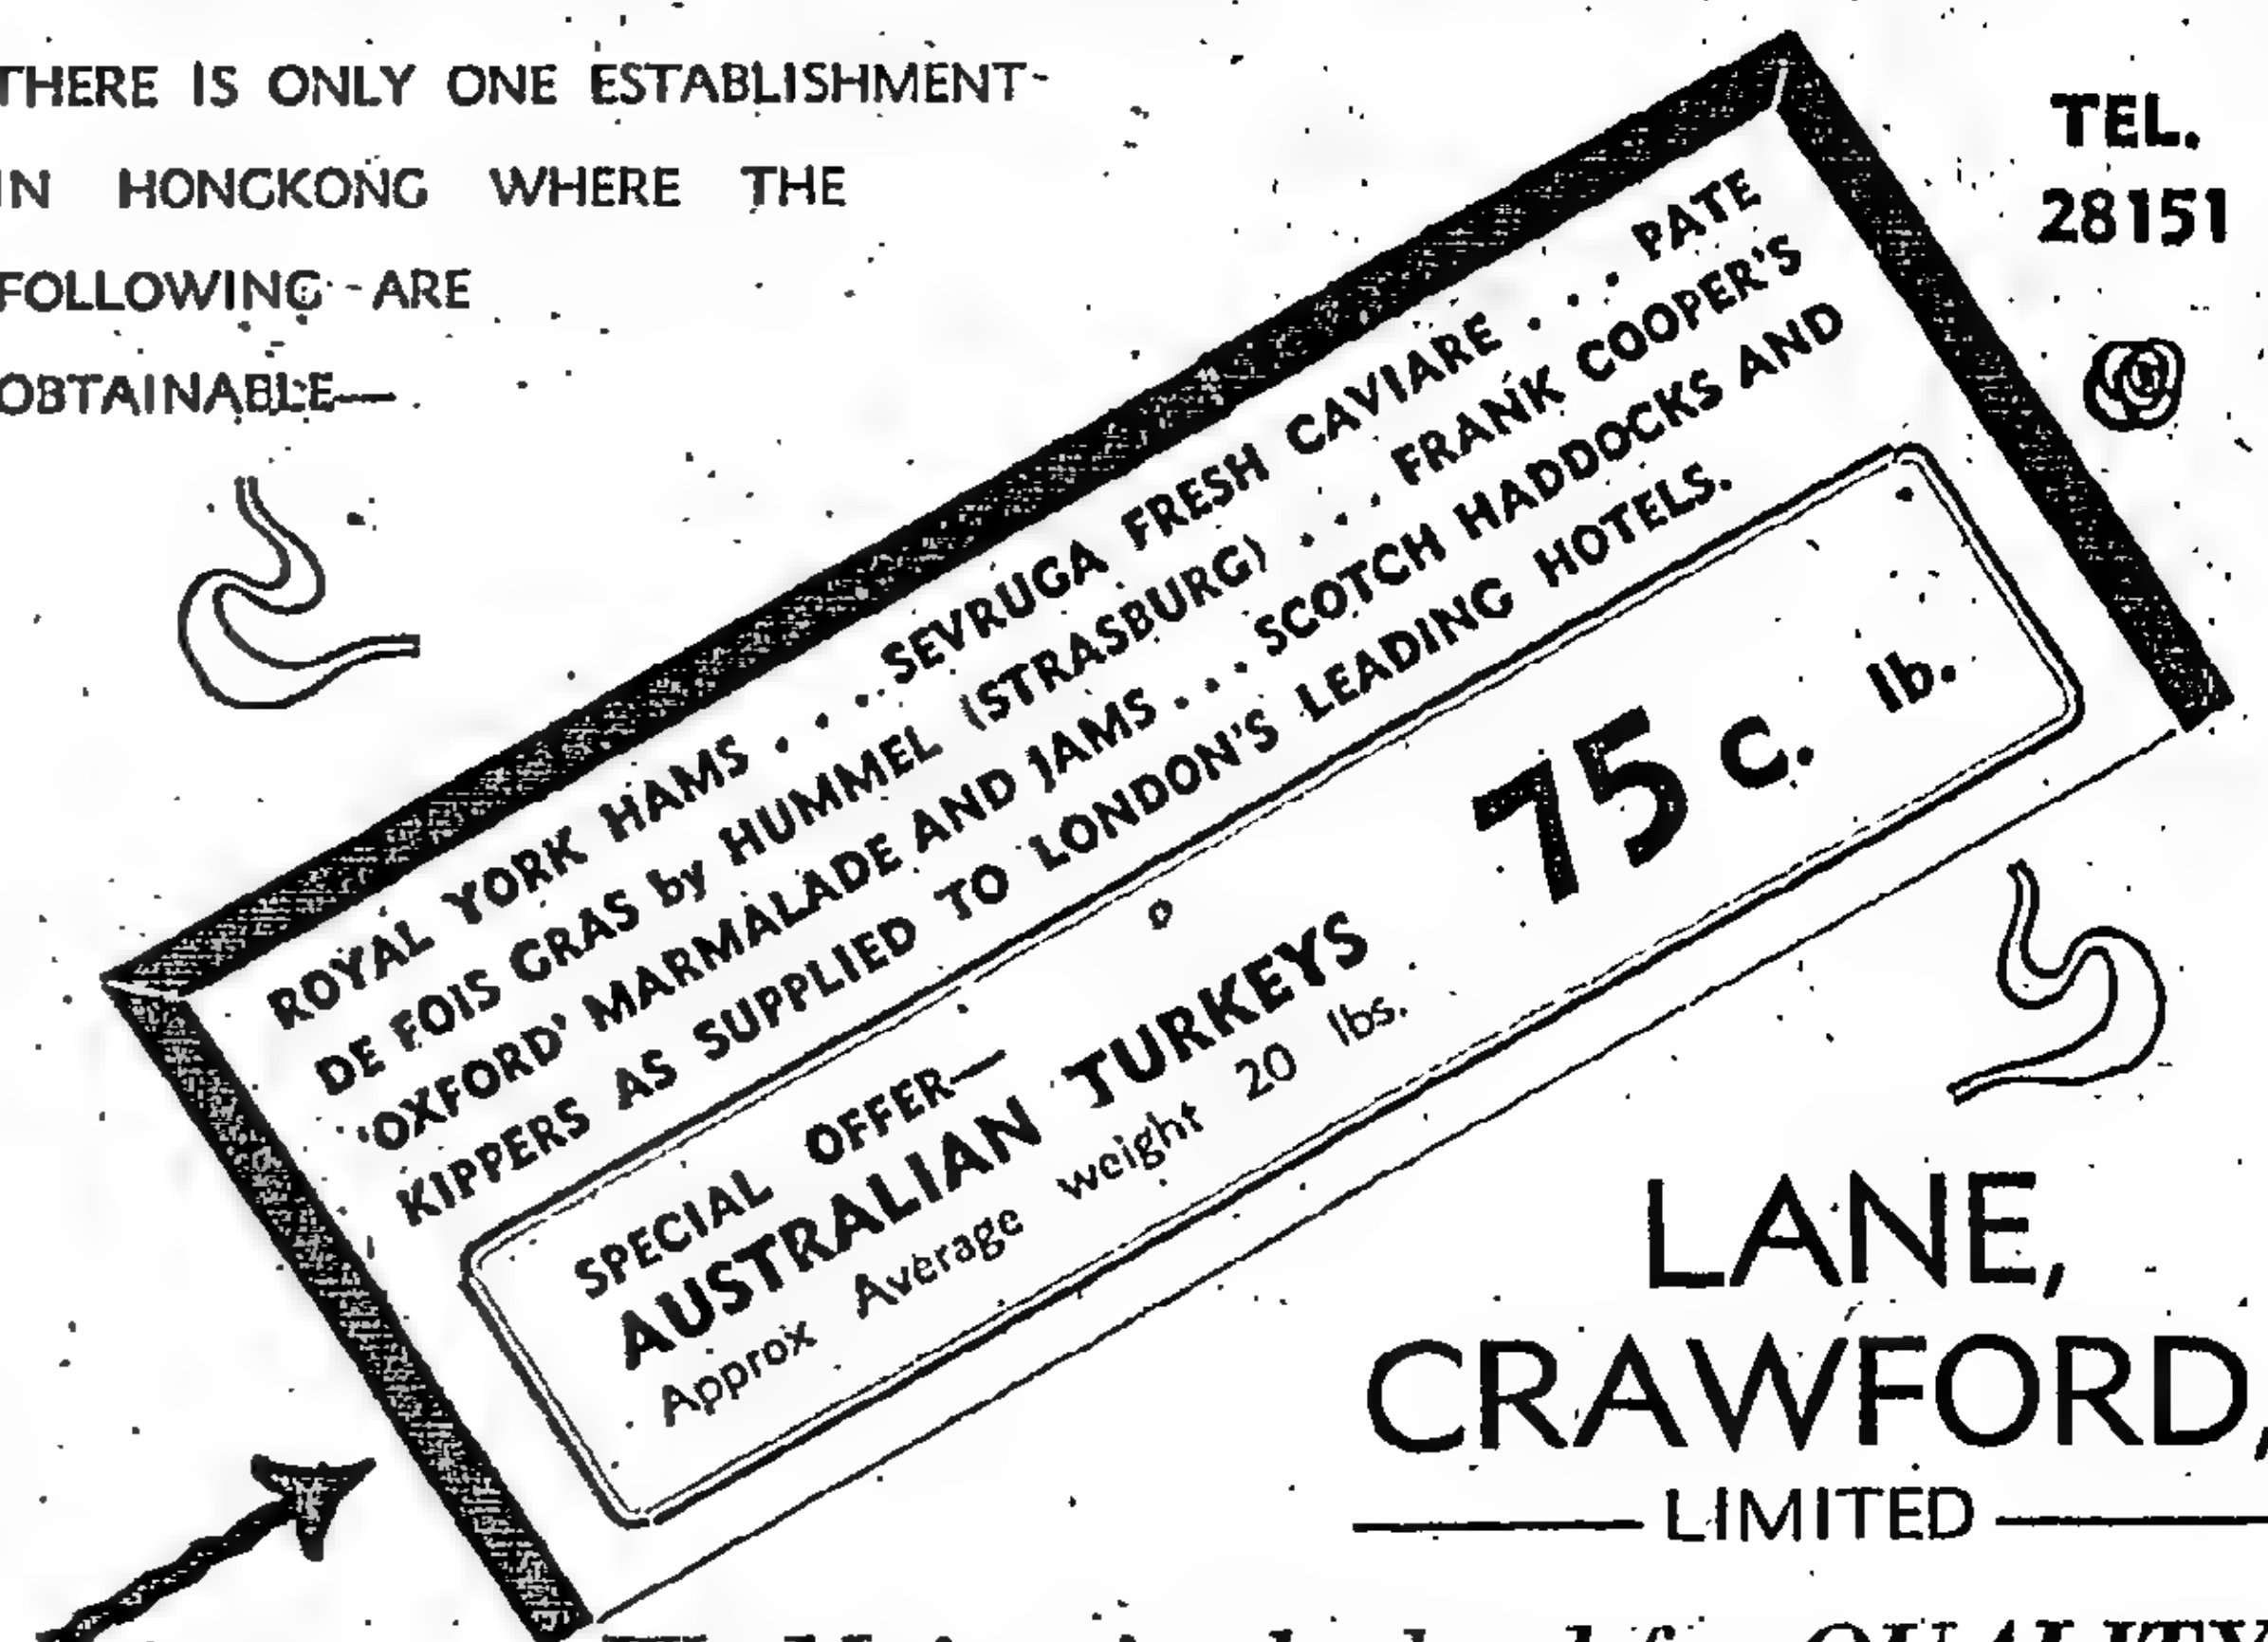

But most terrifying of all is the story of the 45 Mammassans who deserted Italy's colours to join the Ethiopians. They crossed to the Ethiopian lines with guns and ammunition and expected to find friends. Instead they met Dejaz Helle Schessie Gugsu and his rebellious Wajerat who then were on the point of deserting to the Italians. They attacked the 45 with 500 men, took their weapons to be returned to the Italians, killed seven, and broke bones, crippled and mutilated the rest, according to stories here.

The survivors managed to reach the Dessye hospital, and duly received treatment, but were told that they would be crippled for life.—United Press.

MARKET UPWARD YESTERDAY

New York, Feb. 13. Street Journal comment: "Western railroad companies are showing higher traffic gains this year than railways in other sections of the United States. All business indices are gaining sharply, except the index for employment, which threatens a permanent recovery in general business. European countries are impressed with Herbert Hoover's remarks regarding inflation. Many brokers report that at least 50 per cent. of their buying orders are still for cash, although speculative demand has increased considerably. Short interest is still considerably small."

S. C. & F. New York office cables: Stocks: Securities continue in good demand in spite of some profit-taking. Pittsburgh steel scrap prices have advanced by 25 cents a ton. The Douglas Aircraft Company has earned $2.70 per share for the year ended November 30th, against 8 cents per share the previous year. The company's unfilled orders amount to $13,800,000 on February 8th, against $6,588,000 on November 30, 1935. The Southern Railway Company lost $1,523,000 in 1935, against a loss of $2,705,000 the previous year.

Cotton: The firm technical position for nearby cotton is indicated by an unconfirmed report that the Producers' Pool has sold 50,000 bales of "spot" cotton. The Journal of Commerce estimates that it is the intention of farmers to plant 32,376,000 acres. Wheat: The firmness of the market reflects the improvement in foreign and Canadian export demand which, on Wednesday, was estimated at 2,600,000 bushels. The cash market is dull, but firm. The corn market is featureless.

Rubber: The firmness is due to lack of offerings from the East and also owing to the strength of the London market. Special—Average daily petroleum production during the past week is estimated at 2,704,000 barrels against 2,815,000 barrels the previous week. The Edison Electric Institute estimates electricity production at 1,952,000,000 k.w.h., an increase of 10.7 per cent. over the corresponding period of last year.

DI GAETANO GIRLS

NOW APPEARING IN HONGKONG

The five Di Gaetano girls, who were featured in a specialty dancing act on the musical comedy road show, "Casanova Revue," which played one year in the larger cities in the United States from the West Coast to the Middle East, are now in Hongkong. Three months were spent in the best theatres and hotels in Chicago alone. The girls then played with the Hollywood Music Box Revue, featuring the movie star, Mary Brian, which toured the Southern States. Before leaving the States for Shanghai, the Di Gaetano Girls played three months at the famous Club Victor in Seattle. They sailed from Seattle on September 27, last, arrived in Shanghai on October 19, and played a very successful engagement at the Cathay Hotel. Leaving Shanghai on January 8, this year, they arrived in Hongkong two days later, and opened at the Hongkong Hotel on January 11, where they played for one month to a very appreciative audience.

After closing their engagement at the Hotel, they were requested to play the best local theatres in Hongkong. They are now meeting with huge successes at the King's, Oriental and Alhambra Theatres.

The Di Gaetano Girls have been together for five years, studying at the same dancing school, and taught by the same teacher. They all live in Denver, Colorado, and started their dancing career there. They began by playing at the Brown Palace, the Cosmopolitan, the Shirley-Savoy Hotels and the R.K.O. Orpheum, and the Denham Theatres in Denver. These theatres play the larger and leading road shows.

Above are seen the Gaetano Sisters, who are appearing with the Six Gaiety Girls at the Oriental Theatre to-day and to-morrow.

MOTORIST IN A HURRY

WHY HE OVERTOOK TWO CARS

A drunk admission that he had overtaken two small Austin cars on the left in Queen's Road East, because they refused to make way for him, was made by A. G. Piovonelli, driver of private car No. 4378, when he appeared before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, summoned for driving without due care and caution and failing to produce his licence when called upon to do so by a Police Officer in uniform. Defendant was fined $30 on the first summons, and $5 on the second. Traffic Sergeant G. Clark said that on February 3 about 5.10 p.m. he was travelling eastwards along Queen's Road when he noticed defendant's car proceeding in the same direction at a fairly fast speed near the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, and saw it overtake another car just east of Jackson Road. He tried to catch up with it. The car went down Queen's Road and overtook car No. 55 on the left hand side near the Naval Terrace, and also overtook two small Austin cars on the left hand side outside Wellington Barracks. He caught up with defendant at the traffic signal in Arsenal Street which was showing red, otherwise he would not have been able to catch up with him.

NO ALTERNATIVE

When he asked defendant why he was driving in the way he did, defendant replied "If they don't like to get out of my way, I have no alternative but to get past on their left." Defendant also said he had no licence with him, but said he would bring it up to the Traffic Office the following morning, but he failed to do so. Two or three days later he saw defendant at the Traffic Office, and defendant said he had forgotten to take the licence up as he had said he would. Replying to the summonses, defendant said the Sergeant's story was perfectly right. "I was driving fast because I was in a hurry to attend a funeral and I remember overtaking two cars," said defendant. "I signed, but they were running on the tram lines and would not move away, blocking my progress, so I overtook them on the left."

Defendant further stated that as far as his licence was concerned he had an exceedingly busy time that morning and completely forgot to take it up. He went to the Traffic Office three days later and apologised to Inspector Alexander. His speed in Queen's Road was about 25 to 30 miles per hour.

KOWLOON CASES

A fine of $3 was imposed upon Major Dowling, of the Nanking Har- rade, Shanghai, when he admitted a summons before Mr. Macdonald at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning for causing an obstruction in Peking Road at the exit of the Star Theatre by leaving his private car No. 12 there on January 29 from 9.35 p.m. to 11.10 p.m. R. A. Jerrard, of No. 8a Des Voeux Road, appeared to answer a similar summons, and was also fined $3. Sergeant Dowling was the complainant.

UNCERTAIN PEPPER MARKET

called Galie, who had a ten per cent. interest in pool Number One and a twenty per cent. interest in Number Two.

Mr. Ernest Figgis, a produce merchant, said that black pepper, at the time of the reported formation of pools and when the partners made their commitments which ultimately resulted in the loss of $1,000,000 and the break-up of their company, was sixpence per pound compared with eightpence for white pepper. The difference gave a good profit on conversion and added another disturbing element to the market.

Mr. F. L. Fisher, of a firm of auditors, said he saw nothing in the books of the company to indicate partnership commitments. He did not think it necessary in issuing a certificate in connection with James and Shakerpear's prospectus to mention certain forward positions in tin and shell, because such firms were bound to have open positions in commodities in which they dealt.

The hearing was adjourned.—Reuter.

Sarant Government depends for its life.—Reuter Special.

STREET SCUFFLES

Paris, Feb. 14. There have been some street scuffles following the decree for the dissolution of certain Royalist leagues in France, as a result of attack made by members of this group upon the Socialist leader, M. Leon Blum.

Last night police raided and searched the headquarters of the society known as L'Action Francaise. Certain documents were seized and certain doors sealed up.

By midnight last night there had been little trouble, only minor fights with no casualties, being reported. However, seven known Catholics did not among a crowd of demonstrators were arrested. Police are being held in readiness at all stations and the Republican Guard and the Gards Mobile are available if needed.

In the early hours this morning everything remained quiet and trouble was not immediately anticipated. Nevertheless, there is an undercurrent of unrest.

One person only has been detained in connection with the assault upon M. Blum, and will be questioned before the judicial police to-day.—Reuter.

"BEDFORD" A TOUCH, POPULAR TRUCK

—and a Service worthy of it!
EVERY month big shipments of Bedford trucks leave England for every part of the world. And the rising export figures and many hundreds of enthusiastic letters from Bedford owners all over the world have shown that the Bedford is popular wherever it goes. Why this success? For, in designing the Bedford range, Vauxhall experts studied overseas conditions at first hand. They learnt what was wanted in trucks from the very men who were going to use them.

And there is a world-wide organisation to make Bedford service and genuine spares available everywhere. Tested at every stage in the famous Luton works in England, proved sound and reliable on the roughest work in the world, the Bedford is a first-class investment whatever the nature of work!

There's a Bedford Model for every business.

BRITISH DEFENCE

It has long since been clear that, having failed in her efforts to induce other nations to follow her example in disarmament, Britain will be forced to spend huge sums on Home and Imperial defence. One report puts the figure as high as £300,000,000. Whether anything like that sum is contemplated will be revealed when the Prime Minister makes his promised statement on the subject. A factor which weighs with the Government is obviously a desire to be able to speak more effectively in the councils of the Powers when crises arise, and to be in a position to act swiftly in co-operation with nations pledged to the collective security system. These are amongst the major objectives of the Government, coupled with a determination to defend all parts of the Empire from aggression should the necessity arise. Issues having a relation to these points are being discussed at the London Naval Conference. Differences of view have been apparent regarding the size of battleships, and it is not too much to say that some of the most anxious problems of defence with which Britain is faced would appear to have been solved by the investigations into the question of the vulnerability of large warships against aerial attack. There was recently a fear that no answer to the question was likely to be forthcoming at present; for the various categories of experts in national defence were at sixes and sevens, some contending that the modern battleship with adequate deck protection has nothing to fear from enemy bombs, and others that aeroplanes can attack warships with such accuracy and deadliness that the latter would be little better than floating coffins. In such a controversy the lessons of the Great War are not of much use towards solving the problem. Vast progress has been made in aerial power of attack during the past decade or two; warship designers also have not been standing still. Many British warships have been modernised, and anti-aircraft gunfire has become much more effective. According to Viscount Monsell, experiments have enabled adequate protection to be made for battleships against the air menace both as regard anti-aircraft guns and hull construction. Information is thereby available for the construction of the modern battleship. Admittedly, the theories of experts are sometimes blown sky-high in a few moments of practical experience. But this much is clear: that despite the rapidly increasing air strength of many European and other nations, the day has not yet come when Great Britain can dispense with a powerful naval fleet. That remains one of the essential, pre-dominating conditions of Imperial security.

WHEN South Australia celebrates its hundredth birthday this year it will look back proudly on the heroic deeds of its early explorers.

For they faced starvation and death, fierce heat in arid deserts, the spears and waddies of hostile blacks, and the perils of trackless bush in order to blaze the trail for the later pioneers who harnessed nature and brought the State into flourishing prosperity.

Many of the hardships they endured were peculiar to the vast new land they were opening up, and in overcoming them they showed courage, bravery, and resource equal to any in the world. Yet hitherto the world has heard little of South Australia's explorers.

NOTES OF THE DAY

VALUABLE SERVICE

Yesterday morning a big Chinese aeroplane carried the first Paris-bound mails out of Shanghai. It was headed for Hanoi, there to meet an Air France machine and transfer its precious cargo. The Air France plane will not waste time on its long voyage to Europe, but will deliver Shanghai's mail in Paris eleven days after posting. Later on this weekly service will carry passengers. One will be able to step aboard a plane in Canton, go in fast hops to Hanoi, transfer to a French machine, and ten days after leaving have dinner in Paris. Such a service will mean much to business, will facilitate trade and knit more closely the sympathetic relations between Occident and Orient. We fully appreciate the stride the French and Chinese authorities have taken, and we only regret that it was not a British company, with Hongkong as its eastern base of operations, which fetched this joint contract for mail to Europe. It would be a boon to this port to participate in such a service. As it is, we can make a fairly quick connection by arranging for posting in Canton mail which is to be carried by this international service. But it gives one a feeling of inferiority in foresight and business acumen that with the world around us developing these modern avenues of commerce, we still remain satisfied with the old, slow-but-sure systems, or scramble to take advantage of someone else's enterprise.

Progress has been made in aerial power of attack during the past decade or two; warship designers also have not been standing still. Many British warships have been modernised, and anti-aircraft gunfire has become much more effective. MEN WHO MADE South Australia

By Clifford Twelftree

THREE of the greatest and most daring of them were buried Baxter in a shallow grave, Edward John Eyre, Captain and struggled forward. They Charles Sturt, and John had practically no water and not an ounce of flour. And they were 600 miles from civilisation.

Eyre was one of the hardy "overlanders" who drove great mobs of cattle from New South Wales to South Australia less maddened by thirst. Then they had been proclaimed a State un-gone on refreshed.

Adelaide in December, 1836, however, and the game would have been up if Eyre had not come upon a French barque in a east to west that his name will live for always in Australian history.

Eyre left the settlement of Adelaide on his overland journey felt fit to go on. Eventually, of 2,000 miles to Western Australia with fresh provisions, they reached Albany, Western Australia to strike north from the head tralla, in July, 1841.

and, if possible, find country that would provide a safe route to the west.

But there was no fertile country to be found—nothing but stony desert, and sand, and salt tracts. So Eyre with his five other white men and two blacks returned to the safety of Port Lincoln. There he decided to go to the west along the forbidding coastline.

In the scorching heat of an unusually hot summer, the party toiled on. Eyre realised what a desperate task lay ahead of him, and he decided to send his party back and reach Western Australia alone—or perish.

His overseer, Baxter, implored Eyre to let him come, too. They reached their base depot on Eyre agreed, and so the two white men, with three aboriginals, set out on one of the most hazardous enterprises in history.

They pushed on with that endurance which comes only to those who know the odds are overwhelmingly against them.

One waterless stretch of sandy waste they crossed was 165 miles long, and for five days their horses had nothing to drink. The men were crazed by the thirst during the long hot days, and were racked by cold at night. Still they pushed on.

Then came tragedy, swift and terrible. Eyre was away from search for him. Two of the blacks turned traitor. They murdered Baxter, plundered the camp, and made off into the night.

The other black boy, Wylie, remained faithful to his master, close to Broken Hill, without realising the untold wealth of silver that lay there, and came soon to a fine water supply at Rocky Glen.

Here they were marooned, for the country was in the grip of a terrible drought, and they dared not leave their water haven until rain fell. After six weary months at Rocky Glen, the drought broke and Sturt pushed on towards the heart of the continent. He was attacked by a scurvy, but gallantly rode on and discovered many creeks and rivers. Then summer drove him back. When the relief expedition reached him he was ill and depressed, but he had opened the way to immense areas of pastoral country.

THE name of Sturt's companion, John McDouall Stuart, will always be remembered in Australia, for he was the first man to cross the continent from south to north.

Twice he set out from Adelaide, and twice he was forced back—by sickness, lack of food, desert country, and hostile natives.

Stuart began his third attempt in 1861. He was so confident that he told the Governor of South Australia that he would bathe in the Indian Ocean before he returned.

The party encountered scores of obstacles, but in July, 1862, the leaders felt that their journey was ending. On July 25 they burst through the mangroves and shouted "The sea! The sea!" And Stuart bathed in it. The journey was over.

Stuart's boundless determination and grit had been well rewarded. His great expedition captured the imagination of the Commonwealth, and he was given an enthusiastic reception when he returned to Adelaide. He, too, paved the way for large-scale pastoral settlement in the north.

THESE men—Eyre, Sturt, and Stuart—were leaders among the scores of explorers who helped to bring South Australia into being.

Those who have come after them have shown the same energy, pluck, and enterprise in building up their State. The achievements of these men, for a population of only 600,000, are remarkable and are probably unsurpassed. They will be remembered during the centenary celebrations this year. Here are some of them:—

South Australia was the first country in the world to introduce the system of voting by ballot, which has supplanted the practices typified in Dickens' "Eatans-will poll."

South Australia was the first State in Australia to give votes to women. The Act was passed in 1894, and women voted for the first time on April 25, 1896.

South Australia had the first State-owned railway in the British Empire. It began running between Adelaide and Port Adelaide in 1856.

Adelaide is the oldest municipality in Australasia. The city was incorporated in 1840, four years after the foundations of the State.

The Torrens system of land transfer, which has been taken as the pattern of similar legislation in most other parts of the world, originated in South Australia in 1858.

By the completion in 1872 of a telegraph line across the continent from Adelaide to Darwin, Adelaide was the first city in Australia to be connected with London.

The University of Adelaide was the first in Australia to institute a commercial course.

Adelaide was the first city in Australia to run a complete system of tramcars.

The Federal Convention, which led to the federation of the six States into the Commonwealth—the most important event in Australian history—was held in Adelaide.

Exciting Badminton Match Last Night

First Men's Doubles Success Of Season For Kowloon Tong

(By "Veritas")

No more exciting finish to a league match has been seen in badminton this season than last night's men's doubles encounter between Kowloon Tong and St. Andrew's "B", played on the former's court.

After securing a long lead of 4-1, Kowloon Tong faltered and it required a brilliant recovery on the part of P. C. Leung and J. M. Pong to win the eighth game and with it the match. Eventually the home team won by the odd game in nine, Peter Sin and B. K. Wong just failing to annex the last two of the evening, after leading 20-18.

Kowloon Tong thus scored their first victory of the season in the men's doubles, and this made the club's third successive success, two mixed doubles having been won during the past week.

LEUNG AND PONG

The home team owed everything to Leung and Pong, who illustrated the rapid progress they have made in the game by winning all three encounters.

Gray and White, after beating St. Andrew's first two couples unexpectedly lost to Dawson and Kirby following a terrific struggle. The visiting pair, who played extremely well throughout, took long leads of 11-4, 15-6, 17-11 and 20-18 before the Kowloon Tong couple recovered to draw up to 10-20. Then service changed twice without any addition to the score before the visitors snatched the one point necessary to give them game.

A very similar contest resulted from their all-important game with Leung and Pong which followed. Kirby and Dawson swept into a lead of 10-2, but were then caught and found themselves led 11-10. The Kowloon Tong players managed to retain this narrow advantage after a series of fast rallies and clever shots and forced ahead to win after they had reached 18-17.

BRILLIANT ST. JOHN'S WIN

St. John's accomplished their best performance of the season last evening when they entertained and defeated Recreio "B" by six games to three. The all-round strength of the Saints was well demonstrated by the fact that each pair won two games.

But for H. A. Barros and A. E.

Xavier the Recreio would have suffered a much heavier reverse. The Portuguese first string collected three games.

Perhaps the outstanding performers for the winners were J. Bennett and David Kwok, who beat Basto and Remedios after a "setted" game and also defeated Silva and Alves by five games. They gave Barros and Xavier a close game, scoring 13 aces.

Details of the games follow.

KOWLOON TONG v. ST. ANDREW'S "B"

P. C. Leung and J. M. Pong (Kowloon Tong) beat A. S. Bliss and M. Weill 21-11; beat S. A. Broadbridge and N. A. E. Mackay 21-18; beat J. Dawson and L. Kirby 21-17.

S. A. Gray and G. A. White (Kowloon Tong) beat Bliss and Weill 21-15; beat Broadbridge and Mackay 21-10; lost to Dawson and Kirby 19-21.

B. K. Wong and P. Sin (Kowloon Tong) lost to Bliss and Weill 7-21; lost to Broadbridge and Mackay 20-23; lost to Dawson and Kirby 4-21.

ST. JOSEPH'S v. RECREIO "B"

At the St. John's Cathedral Hall last night, the St. John's Club defeated the Recreio "B" by 6 sets to 3.

F. H. Kwok and L. V. Catt (St. John's) lost to H. A. Barros and A. E. Xavier 15-21; beat F. J. Remedios and A. J. Basto 21-14; beat P. N. Silva and E. A. Alves 21-7.

Roland Koh and Norman Smith (St. John's) lost to Barros and Xavier 8-21; beat Remedios and Basto 21-7; beat Silva and Alves 21-17.

J. Bennett and David Kwok (St. John's) lost to Barros and Xavier 13-21; beat Remedios and Basto 21-21; beat Silva and Alves 21-16.

IN TENNIS SINGLES FINAL

GREAT MATCH EXPECTED

THE PROSPECTS

(By "Veritas")

Whether victory to-morrow goes to Mrs. Nora Wilson or Miss Rosamund Hancock, a new name will be engraved on the bowl of the ladies singles tennis championship trophy.

This will be Miss Hancock's second appearance in the final; she lost her first one to Mrs. James in 1933 after having the match "in her pocket."

On the other hand Mrs. Wilson becomes a finalist for the first time, and this in her first year of competition in the Colony event.

With both players showing top form during recent weeks, to-morrow's match at the U.S.R.C. promises to be one of exceptional interest and entertainment.

Mrs. Wilson has touched that form which earned her such an enviable reputation before she came to Hongkong, and I think it can be said without dispute that this winter the Colony has seen Mrs. Wilson play tennis as she really can play it. Her awakened interest in the game following her interport visit to Shanghai has seen Mrs. Wilson regain all her finest strokes, and it is no disparagement to other players here to suggest that on her present form Mrs. Wilson is the finest player in the Colony.

Her stylish and effective play in the singles semi-final and the doubles final during the last fortnight has created a profound impression and she is bound to take the court to-morrow a firm favourite.

EXCELLENT FETTER

But Miss Hancock is also in excellent fettle right now as witness her clever display against Mrs. Kayll in the singles when she had the distinction of beating the reigning champion, and her splendid work in both the mixed doubles and ladies doubles finals, from which she emerged on the winning side in both.

Miss Hancock's biggest improvement is her backhand which is now very dependable. Her forehand ground strokes have always been the most potent factors in her game, so that she can now play a winning game from the baseline against most players in Hongkong.

She has not the forecourt skill of Mrs. Wilson and this may react unfavourably for her; albeit it was noticeable that although Mrs. Kayll is also a strong volleyer and overhead worker, Miss Hancock made her placements sufficiently clever to keep Mrs. Kayll away from the forecourt.

If she can do this against Mrs. Wilson she has quite a chance of winning. But there is another stroke which she has reason to feel a little apprehensive about. That is Mrs. Wilson's forehand cross-court drive which in this case will be directed to her backhand. I rather suspect this shot will pave the way for some typical net raids by Mrs. Wilson. Miss Hancock's chief task most likely will be to counter that shot with good defensive returns and then to manoeuvre for her own favourite forehand drives across court and down the lines.

One can always expect a good battle of wits when right-handed and left-handed players come into opposition, and court-craft and tactics may play a highly important part in the result of this match.

HOCKEY INTERPORT

COLONY PLAYING MACAO

ON MARCH 7TH

Arrangements for the Interport match against Macao were made by the Council of the Hongkong Hockey Association at a meeting held in the St. Andrew's Church Hall yesterday afternoon. Mr. A. A. Dang presided and was assisted by Mr. F. A. Kemp, the Hon. Secretary of the Association.

The first business of the meeting was to receive the applications of Queen's College and the Union Sports Club for affiliation to the Hongkong Hockey Association. Both applications were accepted by the Council.

A letter from the Macao hockey authorities was then read, Capt. Costa, of the Macao team, suggested in his letter that the Interport match be played on Saturday, March 7, and the match against the Civilians on Sunday, March 8.

The Council accepted these two dates and decided that further trials be held for the selection of players to represent Hongkong.

Arrangements were also made for the international matches, the first round of which will be played on March 12.

The draw resulted as follows: Germany v. Scotland (Club ground); Ireland v. England (Marina ground); Wales v. Portugal (Shamshulpo); China v. India (Navy ground).

The second round will be played on March 17 and the final on Sunday, March 29.

O'SHAUGHNESSY'S BOY

 ADAPTED BY BEATRICE FASTER
 from the
 picture

(Synopsis: Michael (Windy) O'Shaughnessy, of Hastings Greater circus, is a famous animal trainer. His wife Cora, high-strung and temperamental, also a performer, has left him, in his absence, at the instigation of her shrewish sister Martha, taking with them Windy's dearest possession, his adored four-year-old son, Stubby. So far, the detective agencies have been unsuccessful and Windy is almost ill with sleeplessness and worry. He is now just about to rehearse his newest and most dangerous stunt.)

THE HOOP OF FIRE

CHAPTER IV

A number of the performers stood about idly in the centre ring, waiting to see the first rehearsal of the new animal stunt.

Jeff looked at the caged tiger, then muttered, "Boy, an oh happy man presence ain't required inside this cage, during this performance."

As Windy came stumbling up, the onlookers eyed him curiously, then nudged each other.

"Say, Jeff whispered to Franz, 'don't you think I oughta put real bullets in this revolver 'stead of blanks?'"

"He only uses that to frighten the cat if she gets tough," Franz answered tersely, "but if the fire does get her fighting mad I'm prepared." He touched the rifle at his side.

Windy approached the cage door, a whip in one hand and the pistol in the other. When he had entered, the door was closed and locked behind him. Moving forward unsteadily, he signalled. Another door opened and the tiger sprang into the cage.

At this moment, however, Windy lurched against the tiger's mounting stand. There was a tense murmur from the watchers as he stooped to right it. Then a shrill cry.

"Look out!" Hastings shouted in sharp terror for the tiger was even then springing through the air.

But in a split second of time Windy had jumped to one side. At the same instant the end of his whip cracked sharply in the animal's face. It crouched where it had landed, a furious, snarling mound of fur.

Now, fiercely concentrating on the job at hand, Windy cracked his whip again, forcing the tiger up, until it had mounted the platform on the elephant's back.

His shouted commands, interspersed with the sharp ringing snap of his whip, rang throughout the tent. He backed away and motioned, "Okay, Jeff."

As Windy's order reached his ears, Jeff struck a match with trembling fingers, for what his sixth sense had told him before, his hearing now confirmed. Windy's voice had broken over so slightly as he had shouted out the command.

Now the torch was blazing. Still facing the animals, Windy backed to the bars of the cage and reached for the burning brand.

The flame flared high. Everyone's breath was held as they saw the elephant cringe, then lean to one side, his little eyes gleaming with terror. The tiger's first reaction was to bare his teeth in alarm. Then who uttered a sudden sharp snarl and crouched as if under a spell. One shot from Windy's pistol however and she subsided.

Windy next applied the torch to the cotton waste and soon the flames were licking their way greedily up the side of the hoop.

The elephant, watched, swaying from side to side, with the snarling, spitting tiger on its back.

"Steady, Rajah, steady," Windy said. "Hee... hee!"

Rajah obediently lifted one foot to take a forward step. Then, fear of the fire overcame his fear of the man. Trumpling wildly, he sidestepped Windy with his trunk, tossing him, a helpless, dummy, against the bars. Instantly, the tiger, seizing her opportunity, leaped at Windy with bared fangs.

There was a horrified uproar. Above the din, Hastings was yelling, "Franz! Franz!"

Franz aimed the rifle, frantically trying to separate the struggling Windy and the tiger in his vision.

"Pry him loose. Get a horse," Hastings yelled. "Shoot, Franz, shoot!"

And now Windy was caught in the trap of fire the enraged tiger clung at him madly. Above the shrieks of the women and the shouts of the men, could be heard the victorious trumpeting of the elephant. Then two shots were fired.

The calendar had dropped many of its leaves on the day that found Windy in the hospital office, facing the doctor.

"Sit down Mr. O'Shaughnessy," Doctor Winters said pleasantly. "I suppose you don't feel too badly about leaving us."

Windy turned a haggard, drawn countenance to him. Nevertheless he managed a polite smile. "Guess I'm kinda' glad to."

The doctor nodded cheerily. "Well, we're happy you're well enough to go. You've had a long siege of it. Here's a letter for you... just came."

Windy grasped the envelope nervously in his left hand. "I suppose I owe you folks a heap of money."

"Not a cent. The insurance company took care of everything," he watched Windy covertly as he saw him fumbling with the letter. "Let me do that for you."

A deep-dyed flush of shame suffused Windy's face. He even went so far as to do a simple thing like opening a letter. He stared through weak misty eyes at his right sleeve which dangled emptily by his side.

Then he squinted at the letter the doctor had placed before him. "Reckon my eyes musta' gone back on me too. It's all blurred." Not that it made any difference now, he thought dazedly. Eyes or ears, what did anything matter when a man's whole world had been snatched from him?

"The anaesthetic often has that effect," the doctor reassured him. "I'll pass the word you like me to read it for you?"

"Please."

Doctor Winters adjusted his pince-nez, then began. "Dear Windy: Got a telegram from the hospital that you're ready to blow. Boy, that's good news. You pick us up in a blubbery. The doctor's voice continued, although he had seen

Windy's glance fall and shift away. "Now don't get the idea that because you've had a little accident you've got to find yourself a shelf and sit on it. For my money you're as good as you ever were. If you still want to do the Fire Trick it's okay with me. I know you can do it."

Clearly as though he were looking at a photograph, the doctor saw where Windy's thoughts had led him. The latter's face was stiff with tension and for a long terrifying instant, he was back in the cage, surrounded by fire with a murderous tiger at his throat.

The doctor made a small sound as if to recall Windy's errant attention. There was a short embarrassed pause. Then he continued reading.

"About Cora and the kid... the doctor heard the hissing intake of breath. "... I'm afraid I've got to give you some bad news. The agency has given up. They can't get any results and so they've quit. Maybe we can hire some other dicks, who'll do better. Now you hop on that train soon's you get this because we're all waiting for you. The elephant miss you, the cats miss you and most of all, your friend, Dan Hastings."

Having finished, the doctor folded the letter meticulously and replaced it in the envelope. He studiously ignored the open trembling of Windy's hand. Searching among the papers on his desk he picked up a timetable. "Now there's a train to Dubuque at ten-thirty. You can catch that if you hurry. There's another at one if you want to stay over for lunch..." He broke off as Windy quietly rose.

"Thanks, Doctor, but... I ain't goin' back there."

So it had come to an issue at last. The doctor faced him squarely. "There's only one way that you can overcome... this thing that's happened to you." He eyed Windy's sleeve. "No... not that, or your son. It's this other thing."

Windy sat down in slow astonishment. "How did you know what's happened to me?"

(What do the doctor's words mean? What HAS happened to Windy? How much longer are he and Stubby to be kept apart? Don't miss to-morrow's thrilling installment.)

A Wise Precaution!

New Maid: "No, but I noticed them praying before they started eating."

A wise precaution when you run up against poorly cooked food, or food doubtful in quality, is a little dose of Pinkettes. These ideal laxative pills assist digestion, help to cleanse the food tract, and prevent the accumulation of waste matter. They dispel constipation, lighten up the liver, keep the skin free from blemishes such as pimples and boils, sweeten the breath, make the eyes bright and clear, relieve piles.

Pinkettes act in a gentle normal way, they soften the gripes, purgative, and are non-habit-forming. Chemists everywhere sell them.

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Three outstanding writers in the world of fiction and the theatre collaborated on the new Paramount romance, "So Red The Rose," opening to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre.

Margaret Sullivan is the star, and the supporting cast includes Randolph Scott, Walter Connolly, Janet Beecher, Harry Ellerbe and Elizabeth Patterson. First credit goes to Stark Young, who wrote the novel: "So Red The Rose," which for a year now has retained its spot on the list of national best-sellers. A Southern boy by birth, Mr. Young recreates a romance of that time in our history known as the War between the States. With understanding and sympathy he had told a story of young love in those turbulent days when men and women stood steadfast for the things in which they believed. The screen version of this novel was entrusted to two well known writers, Lawrence Stallings, co-author of "What Price Glory," and Edwin Justus Mayer, who wrote "Children of Darkness" and "Fiddlers Three."

Margaret Sullivan plays the role of Vallette Bedford, the heroine of the story. Randolph Scott is cast as Duncan, her sweetheart. Walter Connolly creates the role of Vallette's kindly father, Janet Beecher portrays Vallette's mother and Elizabeth Patterson is cast as cruelest of enemies, the imperious and peculiar relative of the Bedford family. The director of "So Red The Rose" was King Vidor, maker of many past successes including "The Big Parade" and "Our Daily Bread."

"Mutiny on the Bounty" is the moving of a large motion picture company to a distant "location" resembles a war-game manoeuvre. This was proved when more than 160 players and workmen and many tons of equipment were transported to the islands at Catalina Island to film the scenes for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Mutiny on the Bounty," opening Saturday at the King's and Alhambra

Theatres. Time schedules and expedient transportation offered the most difficult problems. Equipment was transported to the island by the Bounty and two barges, towed by tugboats. Three generations of plants, two "room" trucks, several automobiles, studio lamps, props, a 100 foot Tahitian war canoe, 15 out-riggers, two score towering palm trees, as many breadfruit trees, 8 interior studio sets, a dozen or more huge baskets of wardrobe, cameras and electrical equipment, lumber and a thousand and one other things required for the expedition. To house the company, the entire isthmus tent city, the historic Banning house and all of the other resort structures were leased by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. For water transportation between the isthmus and the Bounty, the isthmus and two other locations, a fleet of eight high-speed water-taxis were used. Daily, the Betty-O brought quantities of food from Avalon to the isthmus to feed the "mutineers." Meanwhile speedboats skinned back and forth between the isthmus and the mainland, fifty minutes away carrying film "rushes," special messages, etc. While the major scenes were filmed aboard the Bounty, sailing full-rigged from ten to twenty miles off the island, labour crews worked night and day building roads to two distant locations, inaccessible to motor cars. One of these roads, over precipitous cliffs, was three miles in length, reaching to "Matavai Bay," where South Sea natives took part in scenes with the Bounty in the background. Another road, eight miles long, was carved along the "windward side" of the island to another bay where the Pandora, another ship, in the M-G-M Frigate, driven by a real Captain, Francis Tono and more than fifty featured players.

Picture Snatcher

Moviegoers recognize that there is no faster entertainment these days than a James Cagney picture, and his latest Warner Bros. hit, "Picture Snatcher," now at the Star Theatre, is no exception. In fact it is probably the fastest paced film that has ever been made. In so far as action, story, punch, clever dialogue, brilliant acting by Cagney and the fine supporting cast, superb direction and unflinching pace, "Picture Snatcher," is outstanding among the many picture, red blooded pictures which have made Warner Bros. the recognized producers of the most entertaining pictures of the current season. In prize ring parlance, Cagney and "Picture Snatcher" is a knockout and we don't mean maybe. There isn't a dull moment throughout the entire picture. It is one of those ideal Cagney screen stories that has punch in every foot of film, direction that keeps the pace from lagging, and a choice cast of supporting players that was certainly up to snuff in keeping up with the fast moving work of Cagney—and that is saying something in the way of action. Alice White turns in an exceptionally fine performance as the tabloid's sob sister reporter, with a melodramatic sob on her face, although she is the girl friend of the City Editor. The surprise of the picture is the performance of Patricia Ellis, who plays the feminine lead, as the sweetheart of Cagney. This young actress, who made her debut in pictures within the last few months, displays such remarkable ability in such fast company as Cagney, that we can expect great things from her in the very near future. Other important roles which were excellently portrayed were played by Ralph Bellamy, Ralph Harpold, Robert Emmett O'Connor, Robert Barrat, George Pat Collins, Arthur Vinton and Tom Wilson.

"Here Comes Cookie"

A glimpse into the Paramount set during the filming of "Here Comes Cookie," with George Burns and Gracie Allen, which closes at the Queen's Theatre to-day, would convince anyone that the strangest conglomeration of humans and animals in Hollywood's history was gathered

Nazi Radicals Active

WHOLESALE ARRESTS OF CATHOLICS

Berlin, Feb. 14. It is believed that increasing internal tension is responsible for the new nationalistic drive in an effort to incorporate all German youth into a totalitarian scheme, where by Catholic Youth organisations will suffer. It is indicated that Jews will also receive attention. Although outwardly quiet, the German tension seems increasing and there have been wholesale arrests of Catholics in the Rhineland and Berlin areas. These indicate the recurrence of Nazi radicalism, and are surprising since restraint had been anticipated during the Olympic games.—United Press.

DEFENCE VOTE APPROVED

STRONG FEELING IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Feb. 13. The House of Representatives Administration leaders crushed the Economy Bloc's efforts to slash the War Department appropriation, highest peace-time vote in the history of the United States, today. The discussion indicated that the House was inclined to increase the military budget instead of reduce it. The House accepted the Section of the Bill, providing $8,618,994 for coast defences on the West Coast, at Hawaii and in the Panama area.—United Press.

HOUSEBREAKING GANG

MEMBER SENT TO PRISON

"He is a member of a gang of house-breakers," said Detective Sergeant D. Fitches when Wong Chee, unemployed, appeared on remand before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with attempting to break into a store at No. 95 Wing Nei Chung Road on February 8 at 3 a.m. Sergeant Fitches stated that a constable noticed the defendant behaving suspiciously and chased and arrested him. A steel punch was found on him. The constable took defendant back to No. 95 where the lock on the door was found broken and the door open. Nothing, however, had been stolen. A few days previously there had been a theft from this same store. Mr. Schofield sentenced defendant to four months' hard labour.

KING RECEIVES MR BALDWIN

London, Feb. 13. His Majesty the King received Mr. Stanley Baldwin, the Prime Minister, at Buckingham Palace, where they conversed for half an hour. Yesterday, the King gave audience to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the Lord President of the Council, and Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer.—Reuters's Bulletin Service.

REBEL AGAINST COURT'S RULE

Washington, Feb. 14. A group of younger Senators has joined Senator Norris in his drive to force action to curb the Supreme Court's powers. Developing in connection with the Farm Relief Bill, the revolt against the court is expected to continue throughout the session.—United Press.

BRITISH DEFENCE

CABINET PARLEY ON MONDAY

London, Feb. 13. Newspapers stated that a special meeting of the Cabinet will be held on Monday, at which consideration will be given to the recommendations of the Committee of Ministers, which is now understood to have completed its examination of the problem of national defence. The newspapers also anticipate that a white paper setting forth details of the Government's proposals will be issued about the first week in March. When the House of Commons discusses to-morrow a private member's Bill to subordinate the three fighting services to a Ministry of Defence, it is understood the Government's attitude to the Bill, and on the question of greater co-operation and co-ordination in defence matters, will be stated by the Minister without portfolio, Lord Eustace Percy.—British Wireless.

EMBEZZLEMENT CASE DROPPED

MAGISTRATE GRANTS DISCHARGE

Suen Sin-kul, aged 24, cashier, appeared on remand before Mr. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning on a charge of having embezzled the sum of $332.37 from the Shun Cheong Leong firm on various dates between January 12 and 21, and was discharged. The complainant was Yau Po-wan, of No. 24 Des Voeux Road, second floor. In discharging the defendant, his Worship explained that an application was to have been made that morning in Court. Actually the facts of the case had been explained to him yesterday, for the withdrawal of the charge against defendant. Although no application had been made in Court, his Worship saw no reason why defendant should be kept any longer. At the previous appearance of the defendant, Mr. F. I. Zimmern appeared on behalf of the complainant, but this morning he was absent.

SIX CASES ON CALENDAR

CRIMINAL SESSIONS LIST

Six cases, including three of possession of counterfeit coins, are down for trial at this month's Criminal Sessions which commence on Tuesday next. They are as follows: Yip Suk-mei, alias Yip Tuk-cho, charged with possession of counterfeit copper coins; Lam Wah, Tso Koo and Wong Chuen charged with possession of counterfeit copper coins; Hop Sap-yat, charged with possession of counterfeit coins; charged with assaulting Wong Hing, a firewood dealer, with intent to rob him on the night of December 31 last; Tsang Kan, alias Tsang Ting, charged with robbery by two or more persons on the night of December 31 last, at No. 12 Cowshed, Diamond Hill, Kowloon City on December 16 last; Wong On charged with breach of the Deportation Ordinance.
